2 interested in air-rights over tracks

by BILL HILL

Two organizations have shown an interest in building a shopping center-parking garage complex in downtown Arlington Heights using the air-rights over the Chicago and North Western Ry tracks.

Village Planner Joseph Kesler said a real estate development company from Chicago and a group of local people have contacted his office for additional information about developing an air-rights project.

The sudden interest in the air-rights idea surprised Kesler because the project never has received village support. It has been discussed only during meetings of the special downtown improvements committee.

REPRESENTATIVES OF the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce said last week that they planned to contact area developers to determine if there was an interest in the air-rights idea, but that campaign has been delayed.

"It's a good sign to have two people already show interest considering how little publicity it has received," Kesler said.

The logical site for an air-rights development would be between Vail and Evergreen avenues where it would connect the two sections of the central business district divided by the railway tracks, Kesler said.

A decision must be made soon on whether to pursue the air-rights idea, however, because the project would conflict with plans to construct a new commuter railway station between Evergreen and Dunton avenues, Kesler said.

"We are working on preliminary plans for this idea now so there will be no delay when a decision is made by the downtown improvements committee, but we need a recommendation soon because of the plans for a new station," he said.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE new $180,000 railway station is expected to begin this fall. It is being paid for with a grant the Chicago and North Western Ry. received from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

The air-rights idea received mixed reaction from the downtown improvements committee headed by Trustee August Bettman when it was one of three schemes Kesler presented in December.

One subcommittee selected the air-rights plan as the best method for revitalizing the central business district because it could connect the two business areas as well as provide parking and a shopping center.

But the plan was rejected by the full committee because it was considered too expensive for the village to undertake.

Bettman and several other members of the committee also questioned whether the railway would agree to sell the air-rights, but last month a railroad spokesman met with Chamber of Commerce representatives and Kesler to tell them that the railroad is eager to sell or lease the air space over the tracks.

"THE IMPORTANT thing is that the railroad is eager to sell, and developers are showing an interest. This could be a very interesting project," Kesler said.

Donald Morton, of Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn. and a member of the downtown improvements committee, also called the developers' interest "good news."

As proposed in Kesler's preliminary sketches, an air-rights development would have stores and offices on the two lower levels with four upper levels of shopper and commuter parking.

A second construction phase calls for office space or apartments to be built above the parking levels, Kesler said.

Faculty, Harper reach accord in salary talks

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Police leave 'adult' store alone

Porno shop gets no heat to retreat

By JOE SWICKARD

The topless clerk at the adult bookstore leaned across the counter and stroked his beard.

"We've been here about three months and we haven't had any trouble at all," the clerk said.

Although it was the middle of the afternoon of a working day, the front and rear parking lots of the Rand Road Books, 2239 Rand Rd., Palatine Township, were filled with cars.

INSIDE, CUSTOMERS in business suits and construction clothes browsed among the magazines — $10 now reduced to $6 — or fed quarters into the slots of the individual movie screening booths.

The only heat felt at the store was from the temperature nudging the 90-degree mark. The store has not been raided, materials haven't been seized, nor have clerks been arrested.

The store's sister operation, The King and Queen Adult Book Store in Lake County, had not been so lucky. That store closed last month as part of a plea bargaining deal with Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian. A sign on the closed store now directs customers to Rand Road Books.

The King and Queen shut its doors in exchange for the dropping of obscenity charges against two employees stemming from a raid in which the men were arrested for selling a Lake County Sheriff's deputy an allegedly obscene magazine.

THE CLERK AT THE Rand Road store declined to give his name, but he said during his three years of working at adult bookstores he has not been arrested.

"But if you're in the business long enough, you're bound to get busted sooner or later," he said, adding that most cases drag out only to have the charges later dropped or reduced.

"It's a hassle, but it doesn't really come to much unless you want to get a job where they are going to check for arrest records," the clerk said.

The shop offers such titles as "Real Sex" and others more graphic. The counter displays items advertised as "novelties," "life-like" inflatable woman dolls and things he lumped together as "paraphernalia."

THE SIGN AT THE counter announces a $1 admission charge that is refundable with a purchase.

"We don't want to become a library. We don't want the guys coming to spend their lunch hour browsing and then not buying anything," the clerk said.

The sign also limits admission to persons 21 or older.

"I think the state law says 18, but with all the fake ID's, we don't want to take any chances. That's what they'll really get you for," he said.

Most of the customers are men, he said, "carpenters, construction workers, but we also get the businessmen, too."

THE BUSINESS is changing, he said, even in the three years he has been in it.

"It's different now. People used to come in and turn sideways or they wouldn't even wait for a bag. They'd run right out the door. It's more open now," he said.

The openness has extended to women customers, too, he said.

"We get about a dozen or so a week," the clerk said.

Even with all the possible combinations offered in his wares, the clerk admitted, "After all, you see one, you've seen 'em all."

Get-tough policy for weed neglect

The annual weed-cutting program in the Village of Arlington Heights is under way with all costs being passed on to negligent property owners, according to George Weinand of the village health department.

In previous years, only the actual costs of having unkempt vacant lots mowed have been billed to the owners of the property, but this year all clerical and legal costs will be added to the bill, Weinand said.

"Hopefully, this kind of attitude will convince people they should maintain their property. If they're going to force us to mow their property, it's going to be expensive for them," Weinand said.

Weeds or grass must not be more than 12 inches high according to the village weed ordinance, he said.

THE WEED maintenance problem is decreasing as more land in the village is developed, but the clerical costs of the program have always caused the village to lose money, Weinand said.

The new procedure adopted this year calls for a title search to be conducted when violations occur to discover who the current owner is. The owner is then informed of the violation and given 10 days to mow the property. If the maintenance is not done by the owner, the work is done by T and R Maintenance and Construction, which was the low bidder for this year's weed-cutting program.

The actual cost of having the weeds cut depends on the size of the lots, but the bill sent to property owners also will include $10 for the title search expense and $10 for clerical costs.

If the bill is not paid, a lien is filed on the property, which will add $30 to the final bill. All liens must be cleared before the property can be sold.

"This way we get the money eventually, and the program doesn't cost the taxpayers anything," Weinand said.

Burglars steal four CB radios

Burglars stole Citizens' Band radios during the weekend from cars parked outside four residences in the northwest portion of Arlington Heights.

Police said Ray B. Sheffield, of 2103 N. Elizabeth Dr.; Clifford C. Barber, of 2319 N. Huron St.; John F. Carey, of 1518 N. Roanoke Dr.; and Jon C. Dokmo, of 110 W. Apple Tree Ln.; lost

CB radios valued at between $130 and $160 each.

Police said the break-ins occurred sometime between 10 p.m. Friday and 8.45 a.m. Saturday.

All cars were parked outside owners' residences at the time of the thefts.

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers

affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Rosefsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Rosefsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Reagan loses 5 at-large delegates

by STEVE BROWN

State Rep. Donald L. Totten's shaky coalition of Republicans from suburban Cook and DuPage counties failed to win Ronald Reagan any of Illinois' five at-large delegates to the Republican National Convention.

The defeat, Reagan's second setback in Illinois in three months, came after Totten's intensive two-day lobbying campaign of Schaumburg and of other backers of the former California governor.

Totten said the loss of supporters from Kane and Lake counties was the key reason Reagan supporters were not able to claim any of the five at-large delegates elected Saturday in Oak Brook. Both Lake and Kane counties went for President Gerald R. Ford after the county delegations caucused and decided to back him by narrow margins.

The convention selected U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, Clifford Carlson and Hope McCormick, the GOP national committeeman and committeewoman respectively, Republican State Chairman Don Adams and Teddi Inman, the state chairwoman, as the at-large delegates.

TOTTEN, WHO with U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, managed Reagan's unsuccessful March primary campaign, was chosen as an alternate at-large delegate to the convention.

Besides the controversy over the delegates, the state convention also refused to return Carlson to another term as national committeeman.

Harold B. Smith Jr. of Barrington, won that post. Carlson, in an apparent show of unity, seconded Smith's nomination for the job.

Political observers believe Smith's selection places a new emphasis by party officials on fundraising. Smith currently is the head of the Illinois Republican finance committee.

Carlson's ouster as national committeeman may have contributed to Totten's eventual loss as an at-large delegate. The plan presented by Totten called for him to replace Carlson among the at-large delegates.

CARLSON'S KANE COUNTY delegation and other Downstate groups rebelled at the idea that their man was being dumped both from the party leadership post and as a delegate.

Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover and Maine townships supported the Reagan effort.

However, Barrington Township, which is headed by Smith, and Wheeling Township refused to join other suburban groups. Smith also is a Ford delegate from the 12th Congressional District.

The Ford win now gives him 77 of the state's 101 delegates. Reagan has 11 delegates, and 13 remain uncommitted.

The party also voted to name Crete Huddleston, Sterling, as the national committeewoman.

Robert Allen, Skokie; Timothy Swain, Peoria; and Dean Madden of Decatur; were slated as candidates for University of Illinois Trustee.

$2,327, tickets stolen from store

A gunman stole $2,327 in cash and lottery tickets valued at $850 from a Palatine supermarket Sunday afternoon. The robber reportedly fired a shot at a store employee who followed him out of the store, and escaped in a getaway car parked a block from the store.

Police said the robber, brandishing a revolver, took cash and 50-cent and $1 lottery tickets from the Dominick's Finer Foods store, 223 E. Northwest Hwy. The robber fired his gun at a store employee who chased him after the robbery, but the bullets missed.

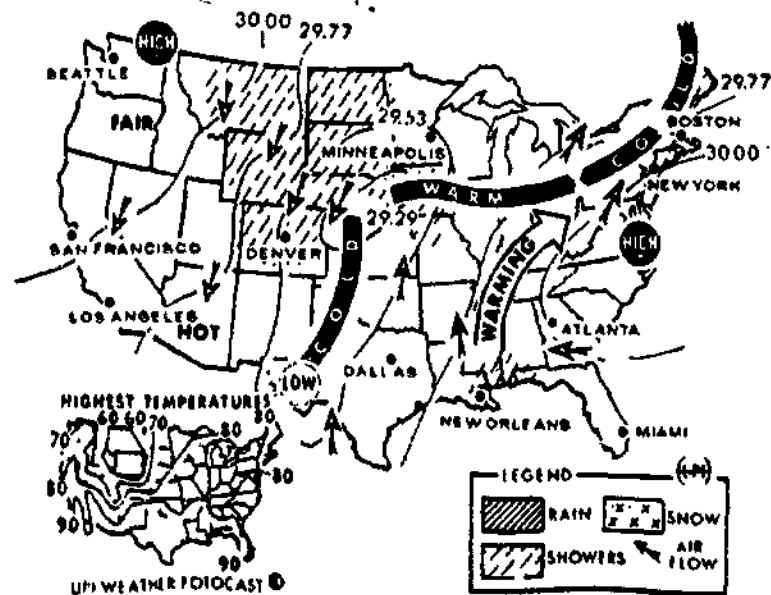

Meadows gets new government

Rolling Meadows voters Saturday adopted a new form of government for the city. By a 1,135-678 vote, residents approved a strong city manager form of government. Residents also voted to maintain the ward system of representation by a vote of 1,139-644. A proposal to reduce ward representation from two aldermen to one, however, to reduce ward representation from two aldermen to one, however, against. Nearly 2,000 voters — 24 per cent of the city's eligible voters — cast ballots in the election. The turnout was considered high by city officials.

Party ends in violence

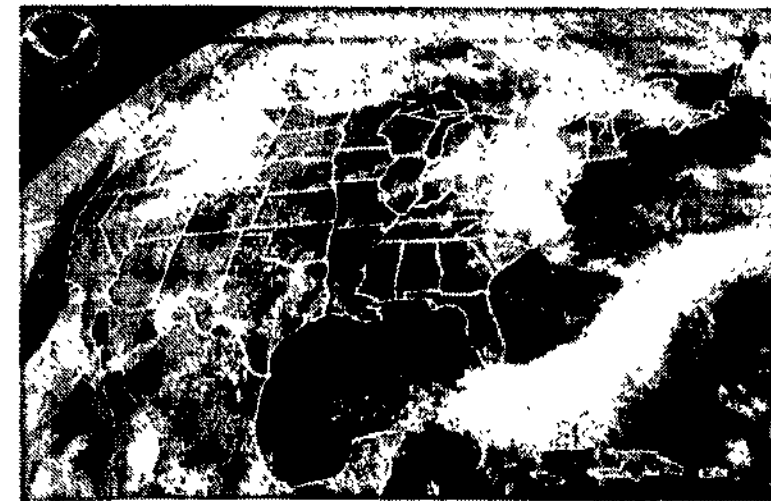

Forty policemen from five area police departments and the Cook County Forest Preserve District were needed Saturday night to break up a noisy party of about 150 youths in Mount Prospect that turned into a violent melee. Three patrolmen were slightly injured in the fracas, which reportedly started when police tried to arrest a 35-year-old woman who was chaperoning a graduation party at her home at 1004 Hemlock Ln., Mount Prospect. Police arrested Cecelia Factor who allegedly scuffled with police when they entered her home to tell Mrs. Factor that neighbors had been complaining of noise. Police said underage drinking was taking place at the party. Police said they arrested Mrs. Factor when she allegedly refused to ask the youths to leave. Police said they were attacked by several youths when they were bringing Mrs. Factor to a squad car. Mrs. Factor's 16-year-old son, who allegedly punched a patrolman, also was arrested. Avery Harford, 19, of 119 S. Phelps, Arlington Heights and a 15-year-old Mount Prospect girl also were arrested. Police from Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Wheeling, Arlington Heights, the Cook County Sheriff's Police and forest preserve rangers were at the scene.

Thoughts on a Mattress

What's in a name? Shakespeare said, "A rose by any other name etc." In the mattress business the magic name is "Orthopedic."

Did you ever try to figure out what an Orthopedic mattress is? The best brains in the U.S. Government apparently couldn't figure it out either. A few years ago the Federal Trade Commission made the mattress manufacturers stop using the term "Orthopedic" on their mattresses and in their advertising.

So the big mattress makes started calling their mattresses "This-A-Pedic," "That-A-Pedic," "Whose-A-Pedic," "What's-A-Pedic" — they had to add another chapter to the dictionary for all the Pedics. I guess the big mattress makers figured a mattress by any other name would smell as sweet.

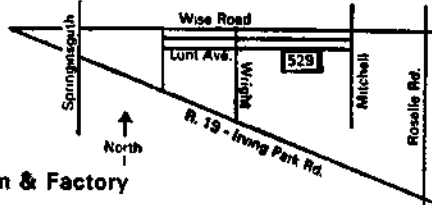

We think our customers might like to name their own mattress. If they want a glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Cleopatra." If they want a funny glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Bob Cleopatra." If they want it sexy, we'll call it "Marilyn."

If they want it endorsed by some famous orthopedic surgeon, we'll call it "Doctor Ortho." If they just want a famous name, we'll call it Napoleon, or Joan of Arc or Einstein.

Whatever they call it, we will still make it with the same quality materials and careful workmanship that we put into all of our mattresses and box springs. We still think the first requirement of a mattress, regardless of the fancy name, is to give a comfortable night's sleep.

Arrest lawmaker; sex scandal broadens

From Herald news services

The congressional sex scandal grew Sunday with a Utah congressman being arrested in Salt Lake City for soliciting a police decoy prostitute.

Rep. Allan T. Howe, D-Utah, a first-term congressman and father of five, was charged with soliciting sex acts for hire, a misdemeanor carrying a possible $300 fine.

Howe claimed he was "lured" into a trap when Salt Lake City police vice officers posing as streetwalking prostitutes arrested him for soliciting sex acts.

"I am innocent of any wrongdoing and beg of my friends and all the good people of Utah to withhold their judgment . . . and accord me the constitutional presumption of innocence," Howe said in a statement released by his press secretary.

In other developments:

- Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, denied involvement in a houseboat sex party with Miss Ray, the blonde former Capitol Hill secretary and romantic partner of Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio.
- Gravel, who gained fame by disclosing portions of the Pentagon Papers, was named Saturday by Colleen Gardner, a 28-year-old blonde divorcee, who says she was required to have sexual relations with Rep. John Young, D-Tex., as part of her $26,000-a-year job.

Mrs. Gardner said she witnessed Miss Ray and Gravel having sex aboard a houseboat owned by former Rep. Ken Gray, D-Ill., on the Potomac River during the early 1970's, while she was entertaining Gray.

Gravel said the allegation was "ridiculous."

- Hays in a Barnesville, Ohio, hospital where he was admitted Thursday from an overdose of sleeping pills — was reportedly "back to normal, ordering people around and asking about his farm."

Salt Lake City Police said the 48-year-old Howe was arrested Saturday night when he approached two decoy streetwalkers and offered them $20 to perform oral sex and have intercourse.

Howe, seeking re-election in Utah's Second District, was booked into the Salt Lake County Jail and released shortly before midnight on his own recognizance. Police planned to file a formal complaint Monday.

"I am still in a deep state of shock over this whole matter," Howe said in a statement he gave to his press secretary before returning to Washington D.C. on an early Sunday flight.

"I do not feel it would be appropriate to describe the details of the incident at this time."

"I was lured to the scene of the incident under false pretenses of an invitation to a political gathering following the Democratic dance at the Terrace Ballroom that concluded the Salt Lake County Democratic Convention," said the congressman.

Pardoning draft evaders in tentative Dem platform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A subcommittee drafting a tentative Democratic platform called Sunday for pardoning draft evaders who objected to the Vietnam War.

The panel also proposed platform planks calling busing a "judicial tool of last resort" to desegregate schools, proposing national health insurance, an "income floor" for all Americans and forbidding oil companies to deal in other forms of energy such as coal and uranium.

The drafters Sunday also discussed defense and foreign policy.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, subcommittee chairman, said the Vietnam pardon plank was adopted Saturday in closed session after much debate.

He said the word "pardon" was chosen rather than "amnesty" to avoid implying an absence of guilt — the position taken by Jimmy Carter, the party's probable presidential candidate.

The proposed pardon would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes, Dukakis said. He said some on the 15-member drafting panel wanted to avoid the pardon issue, and others wanted to make it apply to deserters.

The subcommittee's tentative draft will be voted on by the 153-member Platform Committee in meetings beginning Monday. Final approval will be up to the Democratic National Convention in New York July 12-16.

On busing, the subcommittee draft said: "Mandatory transportation of students beyond their neighborhoods for the purpose of desegregation remains a judicial tool of last resort for the purpose of achieving school integration."

The draft also noted other tools such as redrawing attendance lines, pairing of schools, and the "magnet school" concept in which special purpose schools are established to attract students of all races.

The draft called for replacing the "inadequate and wasteful" welfare system with a "simplified, federally influenced system of income maintenance which included a requirement that those able to work be required to accept appropriate available jobs or job training opportunities." It would include "an income floor both for the working poor and the poor not in the labor market."

The draft urged legislation to prohibit oil companies from operating coal or uranium mines. But it stopped short of forbidding oil companies to operate refineries and distribution or retail systems for oil. It opposed deregulation of natural gas but talked of narrowing the price difference between gas and oil.

ANN MARTIN AND her son Lance, 13, overlook the barge which carried 22 covered wagons up the Ohio River and docked along the Allegheny River bank at Pittsburgh Sunday. The Martins, of Sequim, Wash., have been with the wagon train since June of 1975. The barge will remain docked in Pittsburgh until June 15 when it will go to Elizabeth Township, where the wagons will be unloaded and join other wagons at Camp Round Hill in Westmoreland County, Pa.

Following attempt to kill Amin

Fear 2,000 dead in Uganda purge

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Hundreds of persons — possibly as many as 2,000 — have been killed in a continuing purge in Uganda following an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate President Idi Amin, travelers from the neighboring African state said Sunday.

Amin, in a personal statement broadcast by Uganda Radio, said one of three grenades hurled at him actually hit him in the face before bouncing back outside his vehicle and exploding.

His driver-bodyguard was apparently killed by the same explosion which shattered an escort car and punctured the tires of Amin's vehicle. But he shrugged off the attempt as unimportant and said:

"All leaders have enemies. No one can live for 200 years. He will die when God wills."

The travelers said Uganda was in a "state of panic" and travel to neighboring countries was being restricted.

Amin personally described the attack in a statement read on Uganda radio and monitored here.

A series of explosions rocked the Ugandan capital of Kampala Sunday but Radio Uganda dismissed them as army training exercises.

Radio Uganda said some attackers were killed "on the spot" at last Thursday's attempt and others had been arrested. An unnamed cabinet minister was reported among those undergoing interrogation in the plot.

The soldier-president, who has survived a series of attempts on his life, said his driver was badly hurt by the explosion of the grenade which bounced off his face. Amin drove him to a hospital even though the tires of the vehicle were punctured by the blast. The driver apparently died later.

Amin said his escort car was shattered in the explosion and his ministers believed it was a "miracle" he escaped unhurt.

The travelers said Ugandan security forces set up roadblocks throughout the country and a massive dragnet continued to capture members of the assassination squad.

They said hundreds of persons, possibly as many as 2,000, had been killed in a massive purge following the attack. But these reports remained sketchy and could not be officially confirmed.

But diplomatic reports persisted that Amin received superficial shrapnel cuts on the arms and body.

Amin has often said he is not afraid of death because he knows exactly when and how he is going to die.

A statement broadcast by the official radio said the grenades used in the attack were "only used by the American and Israeli" armed forces.

Canadian border patrols beefed up for Olympics

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canada and the United States long have taken pride in calling their Atlantic-to-Pacific common border "the longest unfortified border in the world."

It still is, but — mindful of the horror that marred the 1968 Olympic Games in Munich when Arab terrorists invaded the Israeli quarters — Canada has been forced to intensify its border patrols to make sure no terrorists get through to the Montreal Olympics opening July 17.

along the border, the increased measures call for helicopter surveillance, patrols by boats along border waterways, and foot patrols by troops and police through heavily forested areas along the border.

To date, the operation has failed to turn up any potential terrorist suspects, police said.

Canadian Armed Forces units have joined regular border patrols and will remain on special alert duty through the Games.

A Royal Canadian Mounted police spokesman said the beefed-up measures include increased air, ground and waterway patrols as well as greater security of persons entering Canada.

"We've intensified our patrols for the Olympic period mainly at the borders of New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario but these measures also apply for the rest of Canada," the spokesman said.

The U.S. states along the Canadian border requiring heaviest security checks will be the New England States, New York, Michigan and Minnesota. U.S. border units have also been requested to tighten checks on entrants to Canada.

Newman, Redford may be caught by legal 'sting'

- The chronicler of Yellow Kid Well, possibly America's biggest con man, wants to give "the Kid" the last laugh on, among others, Paul Newman and Robert Redford. Attorneys for author William T. Branham filed a $50 million federal court suit Friday against the producers, stars, and distributors of the movie "The Sting."
- The suit accuses them of stealing the Kid's life as outlined in the book he copyrighted in 1948.
- Andrea Portot of Revere, Mass. is on his way to fulfilling a dream. He's on the Atlantic today en route to Italy in a 44-foot Ketch he built at home. Portot plans to live in Italy aboard the boat. His crew consists of Thomas Montgomery, a navigator in the Merchant Marines, Charles D'Olympie, 27, his nephew and Dr. Stefano Stefani, 47, a Chicago cancer specialist.

- Secretary of State Henry Kissinger ended his eight day swing through Latin America Sunday by relaxing on the beach at Cancun, Mexico. The Kissingers and their entourage arrived back in Washington late Sunday.
- George V. Higgins, noted author-attorney, said Sunday he is quitting as Eldridge Cleaver's lawyer because of "differences of opinion" between him and the former Black Panther leader, whose trial had been set in Oakland, Calif. Monday. Cleaver is charged with attempted murder and assault with a deadly weapon in a 1968 Panther shootout with police.

- The widow of Dr. Sam Sheppard, cleared of his first wife's murder after serving 10 years in prison, says she is planning to write a book on Sheppard's life. Mrs. Ariadne Sheppard said her decision was based in part by a recent television movie about the case.

At least 2 killed in Lemont twister

At least two persons were killed Sunday night when a tornado "leveled an eight-block area" of Lemont, Ill., state police said. It was also reported 14 persons were injured. Several twisters touched down on the city's South Side Sunday night. No injuries were reported from those tornadoes.

State police Sgt. Carl Rasins said the twister "pretty much leveled an eight-block area."

Heavy construction equipment was being taken to Lemont to sift through the rubble. Severe thunderstorms were reported over Cook, northern Will and parts of DuPage counties.

Investigative reporter dies of injuries

Investigative reporter Don Bolles, severely wounded by a bomb planted under his car June 2, died Sunday at St. Joseph's Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz. Hospital authorities said Bolles, 47, whose stories for the Arizona Republic included series on the Mafia and other criminal activities, died at 11 a.m. Bolles told paramedics who first treated him, "The Mafia . . . got me."

Flood weary tend to matters of the soul

Flood-weary residents of Rexburg, Idaho took a day of rest Sunday to attend their first peaceful church services since the Teton Dam disaster a week ago. Residents "turned their minds from matters of the flesh to matters of the soul," said Mormon Church official, Jerry Cahill, of Salt Lake City.

Demicheli takes reins in Uruguay

Alberto Demicheli, an 80-year-old constitutional lawyer, took over Sunday as Uruguay's interim president as part of what promised to be a very slow move in the direction of democracy. Demicheli, elevated from the vice presidency by the military Saturday night in a bloodless coup, had no plans to move into the presidential palace. Former President Juan Maria Bordaberry, ousted because he rejected the military's plan to return some form of democracy to the country, prepared to move from the palace to his 3,000-acre cattle ranch.

Lebanon battles shatter cease-fire; Arafat trail cut

BEIRUT Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian armored troops battled Palestinian guerrillas in south Lebanon Sunday, shattering a day-old cease-fire and cutting the Palestinians' supply line, the "Arafat trail."

The two-week war between Syria and Lebanon's leftist-Palestinian alliance erupted anew in the southeastern Arakoub region, around the southern port of Sidon and in the central mountains, leftist and rightist reports said.

At the same time, the 14-month "traditional war" between Lebanese Moslems and Christians flared up overnight in Beirut. Militiamen in neighboring city districts and suburbs pounded each other with rockets, mortars and machinegun fire, killing 56 persons and wounding 73 in the past 24 hours.

The shelling died down by morning but sniper fire across religious confrontation lines in the capital kept the streets empty.

Palestinian, leftist and rightist reports said a Syrian armored brigade of about 40 tanks and armored personnel carriers with infantry and artillery units battled its way into the Arakoub, the northern end of the Palestinian guerrilla movement's heartland on the Israeli border, clashing with guerrilla forces "several times."

The Syrian column seized two Palestinian bases, one only 18 miles from Israel's northernmost frontier, killed 17 guerrillas and wounded "dozens," the reports said.

The Syrian assault cut the "Arafat trail," the Palestinians' main supply line from Syria to their bases for commando attacks on Israel and a major leftist lifeline even after the Syrian army entered Lebanon May 31.

Syrian troops also fought leftist and Palestinian gunmen and advanced on two roads from the eastern Bekaa valley towards leftist mountain outposts around Aintourah, 19 miles northeast of Beirut, cutting the guerrillas' supply lines there.

Syrian forces shelled the surrounded rebel army base at Rachaya and rained artillery fire on Palestinian positions around the leftist-held Biblical port of Sidon.

In related developments:

- Israeli defense officials Sunday briefed the Israeli cabinet on recent developments in war-torn Lebanon, but government sources said the situation still does not warrant Israeli intervention. Reports that Israeli forces mauling the northern front lines had been placed on heightened alert because of Arab military movements could not be confirmed.

- The Soviet Union singled out the United States, France and NATO as specific targets of criticism in its second "hands off Lebanon" warning in less than a week. It also took a slap at Egypt for questioning Moscow's motives in the Middle East. "What the USSR is really against is any interference in the Lebanese crisis from any force from outside, be it under French, American or NATO flags," a commentary said.

Village begins contest to paint plugs in '76 style

Registration for the Arlington Heights Bicentennial fire hydrant painting contest opens today at the library and the municipal building.

The contest is being sponsored by the Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, The Bank and Trust of Arlington Heights and the village. The banks are offering U.S. Savings bonds to the winners in the four age categories.

Persons wishing to paint hydrants north of the railroad tracks must sign up at the library, 500 N. Dunton Ave. Hydrant painters south of the tracks sign up at the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Contestants must provide their own oil base enamel paint. Hydrants must be painted with a Bicentennial theme. Silver reflective paint on hydrants must be left uncovered.

Contestants will be given registration numbers, which should be painted on the curb in front of the hydrant. Judging will take place around Labor Day. Hydrants must be repainted by the contestants by Oct. 31.

Age categories for the competition are kindergarten to fifth grade, sixth through eighth grade, high school and adult.

Savings bonds of $75, $50, and $25 will be awarded to the first-, second- and third-place winners in each category.

ify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:

- Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.
 - The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.
 - Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than to use the current board-administration team.
 - Teachers to drop all lawsuits against the board resulting from the contract dispute, while the board will take no reprisals against the teachers for actions taken during the contract talks.
 - Expanded health and life insurance benefits.
 - $1,375 in raises for teachers.
- BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Cohen ordered the board to negotiate and a series of appeals by the board followed. After losing an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court, representatives of the board and faculty returned to Cohen's courtroom Friday.

Movie screen, TV stolen from school

Burglars smashed a window to gain entry to St. James Junior High School, 840 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, and stole a movie screen and television, police reported.

Police said the break-in occurred sometime between 3:30 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday. A student discovered the thefts Saturday morning and alerted police.

Also taken from the classroom were a wall clock and intercom button, police said. Value of the stolen property was not reported.

The invaders broke light switch handles and ripped moldings bordering blackboards in the school.

Ask Andy

Hiccup—a vibration in vocal cord

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Steve Sanger, 10, of Veradale, Wash., for his question: WHAT CAUSES A HICCUP?

Ordinarily things in the body function the way they are supposed to. For example, the diaphragm normally contracts and relaxes in a regular rhythm. Sometimes, however, an irritation will upset this rhythm and, before we know what has happened, off we go on a rollicking, hiccuping spree.

Our body carries on an amazing assortment of highly complex operations. And all the operating equipment is packed into a surprisingly small space. Our voice box, for example, shares space in the neck with the breathing and food tubes. The stomach crowds close to many other organs, but generally there is enough room for everything to run smoothly.

Inside the body is a large, mighty, dome-shaped muscle that lies at the base of the chest cavity. Like so many things in our body, this muscle works automatically and we never give it a thought. Each time this bellows-like muscle contracts, fresh air is brought into the lungs. And as it relaxes, stale air is expelled from the lungs.

As air is brought into the nose or mouth it passes into the windpipe. The top of the windpipe has a movable flap of skin called the epiglottis. When we breathe the epiglottis is open. When we eat, however, the epiglottis closes and lets the food pass over it into the food tube. The epiglottis and the diaphragm both play parts in our hiccuping spells.

Usually the contractions of the diaphragm are rhythmic and gentle. Sometimes, however, an irritation of an organ near the diaphragm, or perhaps a certain disease, may cause the diaphragm to suddenly contract in a spastic jerk — again, again and again.

When this happens, air is inhaled suddenly. At the same time the epiglottis snaps shut and the flow of air is shut off. The abrupt closing of the epiglottis causes the vocal cords to vibrate and produces the uncontrollable syllables that sound like "hic-cup."

Over the years people have come up with an amazing assortment of so-called "cures" for hiccups. Some claim that holding your breath to the count of 10 will stop them. Others say that you should hold your arms high in the air while breathing slowly. Another theory holds that standing on your head is the only sure way to stop these annoying spasms. Fortunately, hiccups usually subside within a short time, regardless of the technique used.

The contractions of the powerful diaphragm are governed by a network of automatic nerves. Under certain conditions signals get confused and these nerves go out of control. When this happens, the normally regular rhythm of the diaphragm is interrupted. The sudden spasm causes a chain reaction, and the result is hiccup, hic-cup and HIC-CUP.

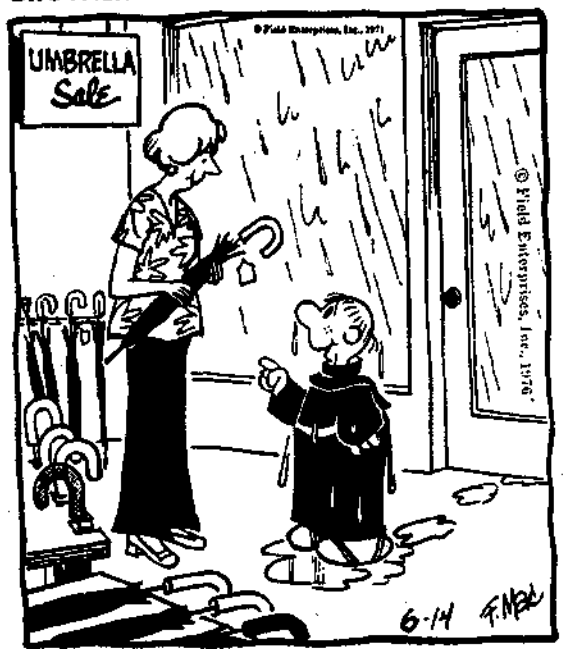

Andy sends a Student Globe to Scott Fields, 12, of Florence, S. C., for his question: HOW MANY LETTERS DOES ANDY GET EACH MONTH?

The letters and postcards Andy receives come from all over the United States and many parts of Canada. Perhaps because he is so anxious to read the questions, he does not have an exact tally of their numbers. There are a great many each week, to be sure. But no matter how many there are, Andy manages to read them all.

Andy's pen pals are all ages, but answers in the paper are restricted to questions from writers between the ages of 7 and 17. These young people usually send their questions in letter form, although post cards are preferred since they are less costly to send and much easier to read. Sending in several questions at once is fine, but Andy hopes everyone will remember to include his age, address and ZIP code.

spades and cleared the suit, but now South could lose the club finesse and still make his contract.
Jim: "I imagine that East told West if he had let South hold that second trick, South would not have made his game."

Oswald. "Yes, he did. And North congratulated South on letting the queen hold the first spade."

Jim. "No conversation about the missed slam in clubs?"
Oswald. "Not a smidgeon. No one pointed out that North had underbid his hand tremendously and no discussion of what series of bids would get North and South to six clubs."

Abortion

It's still an issue with no truce in sight

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(A news analysis)

The U.S. Supreme Court handed down a decision on Jan. 22, 1973, that overnight polarized the nation. Abortion became legal everywhere in the country. Sides formed. One either endorsed the ruling or strongly contested it. There wasn't — still isn't — a middle ground.

Overturning all more restrictive state laws, the Court stipulated that during the early stages of pregnancy, the decision whether or not to terminate that pregnancy is entirely up to a woman and her doctor. Only after the fetus becomes viable, following the second trimester, can the state step in and prohibit abortion.

Today, almost three and a half years later, the Court ruling still stands. But abortion is a far cry from the personal, private question suggested by the Supreme Court. While other issues burn themselves out, this one continues to spread.

At the very least it causes tempers to boil, dinner topics to turn into angry debates. Much more serious, the availability of non-therapeutic abortions has turned into an inflamed political issue, been labeled a moral sin for certain faiths and is often described as the most tragic criminal act of all — murder.

NO TRUCE is even close. Opposing, subjective viewpoints continue to clash. When does life begin? Anti-abortionists believe an embryo is a human being. But persons supporting the Supreme Court ruling distinguish between potential for life and viable life itself, that state of fetal development when life can be maintained outside the womb. No woman is being forced to seek an abortion. Yet the option should be open to her, they believe.

In fact, the law has not coerced anyone to comply or participate, including doctors and hospitals. For more than a year after abortion was legalized, Northwest suburban women seeking abortion-on-demand were forced to use private clinics downtown. Hospitals in the area would not provide services.

During 1974 only a little more than one-fourth of all non-Catholic general hospitals were identified as having performed even one legal abortion — not quite one-third of private hospitals and fewer than one-fifth of public hospitals. (DHEW, Center for Disease Control.)

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge was first. In April, 1974, the hospital began allowing its staff of physicians to perform the procedure, but only during the first trimester of pregnancy when, according to Planned Parenthood statistics, 97 per cent of all abortions were performed in Illinois last year.

TWO CATHOLIC-OPERATED hospitals, Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines are unlikely ever to institute abortion-on-demand.

And only at the end of April of this year, by a narrow vote of its board of directors, did Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights switch its decision to yes.

"The reason for the policy change is the fact that a number of people feel a community hospital should serve the whole community," hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun told The Herald shortly after the decision was reached.

As soon as procedures and protocol are set up, which one hospital spokesman indicated may take anywhere from several months to a year, nontherapeutic abortions will be performed by willing staff physicians.

Northwest's change of heart did not go unnoticed. Local anti-abortionists were appalled.

Marcie Sneed of Arlington Heights, who is vice president of the Illinois Federation For Right to Life, helped organize a picket line in protest and is presently deluging neighborhoods with a 50,000-leaflet campaign urging residents to fight the more liberal change in policy.

IN "HUMAN LIFE Our Legacy and Challenge," a soft-cover book edited by Mrs. Sneed to support the Right To Life cause, she refers to on-demand abortion as "an American tragedy."

"It is impersonal and bureaucratic and those who order, commission and organize it, as well as those who execute it, have very little feeling for their victims. They are simply executioners," she writes.

"Young girls in particular are traumatized and hoodwinked into thinking abortion is nothing. It's far more dangerous than any normal, natural pregnancy would be," she said when contacted last week.

The number of abortions reported throughout the nation increased from 742,000 in 1973 to 900,000 in '74 to over a million last year. (DHEW, Center for Disease Control.)

Yet according to a 10-month National Academy of Sciences study released in June last year, "an abortion is far less dangerous to a woman's life than carrying a pregnancy to term or such common surgical procedures as tonsil or adenoid removal."

Ironically Marcie Sneed and Helen Smith, former director and current political action chairperson of the Abortion Rights Association of Illinois, both have three children.

"If you think an embryo is a person I would protect that right. But don't try to tell me what to think. Right-to-lifers write everyone out of the human race who do not agree with them," said Mrs. Smith who prefers to be labeled pro-choice as opposed to pro-abortion.

"IN A PLURALISTIC society it is the right of the individual to make decisions based on his or her own ethics, morals and religion," she continued.

"The whole abortion issue is a game. Abortions always did exist; they always will. The Archdiocese just wants to make it look like they don't exist by making them illegal.

"Nothing is going to change the mind of those women who don't want a pregnancy. And no matter who finally wins in this game, nothing is going to stop abortion."

Seven out of 10 legal abortions performed in 1974 would have taken place illegally if abortion were outlawed, according to Christopher Tietze, senior consultant to the Population Council.

Yet right-to-lifers seek to insure due process and equal protection of the law for the individual "from the moment of conception." They hope to amend the Constitution to outlaw abortion. Thus far they have been unsuccessful.

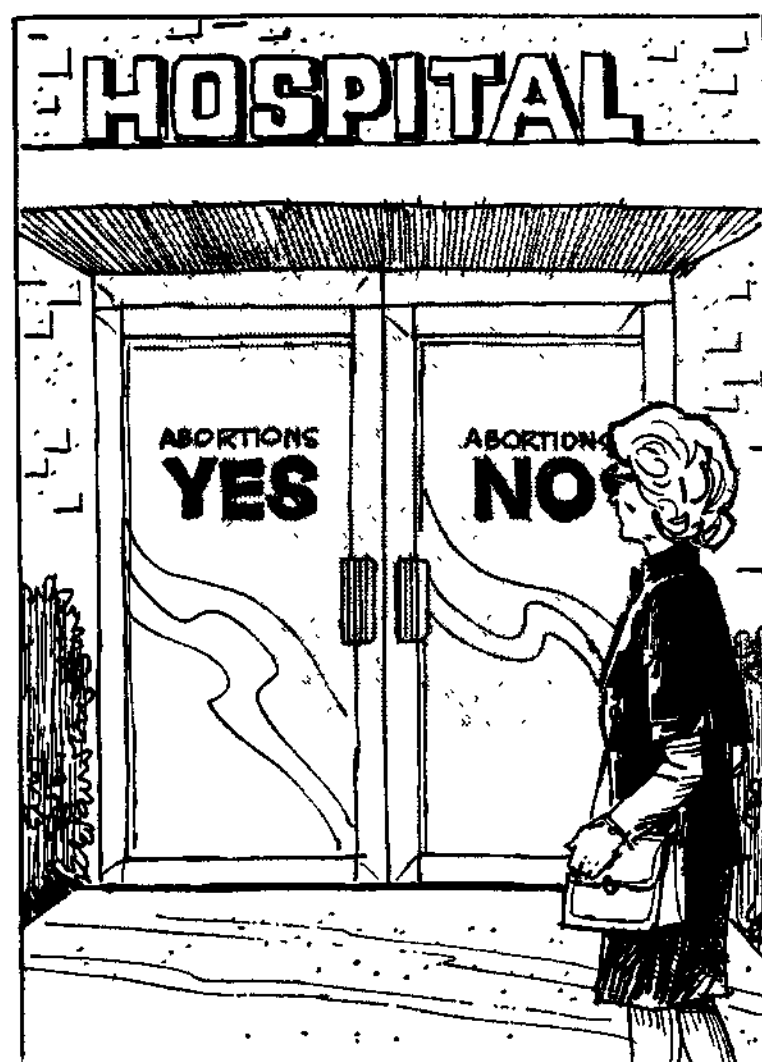

"The odds against that are like the odds of making any amendment to the Constitution — huge," said Phil Kurland, law professor at the University of Chicago who is considered an expert on constitutional law. The amendment process, he said, has been made extremely difficult.

Overturning the 1973 Supreme Court abortion ruling can only be accomplished by the passage of a constitutional amendment by a two-thirds majority in both House and Senate and ratification by three-fourths of the 50 state legislatures.

Or if a State's Right Constitutional Amendment were ratified by three-fourths of the states, each state would then be able to legislate the legality of abortion. This seems equally unlikely.

Yet changes can be expected "around the fringes," said Kurland. the 1973 Supreme Court abortion rights decision left many legal questions unresolved.

In November of last year, for instance, the Illinois legislature overrode Gov. Daniel Walker's veto and enacted a new comprehensive abortion law which established spousal and parental consent requirements and prohibited abortion, by the saline technique after the first trimester of pregnancy.

Yet like many other states that tried to impose conditions not expressly prohibited by the Supreme Court but which appear to be aimed at restricting a woman's freedom of choice, the law was struck down as unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Right now the U.S. Supreme Court is hearing a Massachusetts case which may serve as a landmark as to whether or not parental permission for minors under 18 should be required.

Though there are no new bills pending in the Illinois state legislature, several have been introduced over the last six months on the federal level.

Thirteen are House joint resolutions for constitutional amendment, and one is a Senate joint resolution for the same thing.

Of the three regular House bills, one is a School Age Mother and

In Illinois 32,760 abortions were reported in 1973, increasing to 51,140 in '74. 1975 statistics, when available, are expected to duplicate '74 figures. (Alan Guttmacher Institute of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.)

Child Act introduced by Rep. William S. Cohen (R.) of Maine. He felt with all the discussion about abortion, no help is being offered those teenage mothers who decide to have their babies.

If passed, the act would provide both medical and social support in the form of counseling, nutritional information and prenatal care. It is expected that one out of every seven women in the age bracket of 12-17 will give birth in the next year.

Another bill, if passed, would establish a committee to study the impact and ramifications of the Supreme Court's decision on abortion, and the third would prohibit the use of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) funds for abortion. No action is expected soon on any one of the bills which are still in subcommittee.

In Illinois few abortion charges have been filed with the Illinois

Bias striped fabrics take more planning

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Why do so many patterns tell you they are suitable for bias striped fabrics? Apparently you could not use a regular collar but couldn't this be cut on the bias and have pleasing results? Please give us your help. The sewing books all seem to avoid these sticky questions. —Miss R. K.

Dear Miss R. K.,

Fabrics printed with bias stripes and design take a little more thought than the average sewer is willing to give, so this fabric is usually found only in ready-to-wear.

There is no valid reason why most patterns cannot be cut with this fabric, but you should avoid raglan sleeves or a shawl collar that is cut in one with the facing. A regular shirt collar can be cut on the bias, and this would give a horizontal stripe effect which should work well.

The press on interfacing used on the wrong side of the top collar would stabilize the fabric and avoid stretching. Choose patterns with very little detail and few pattern sections. This will allow the beauty of the bias stripes to show at the best advantage. (Of course, a bias cut garment would not work either.)

A tip I have used often that works with many unusual fabrics is as follows:

ON EVERY PATTERN work sheet is a miniature sketch of each piece of your pattern. On a plain piece of paper, draw either diagonal stripes or borders or whatever, and place these miniature pieces of your pattern on the paper. You will be able to see exactly how each piece of your pattern will look on the fabric. You can actually trace the lines and pin the small pieces together.

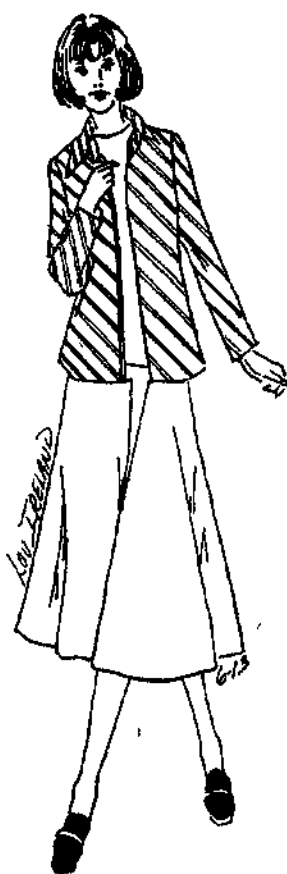

At this point, you can make decisions about the choice of pattern without touching your fabric. If you don't like the effect, simply choose another pattern.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I followed a sewing book and applied the directions for a waistband the way they instructed. Now the waistband is the same size as the skirt and it gaps in back. Since my fabric was a brocade, it doesn't seem to be strong enough to rip. How can I make the waistband fit better? —Mrs. F. C.

Dear Mrs. F. C.,

First, I have tried to explain many times that the waistband should be fitted to your body before you apply it to the skirt. The top of the skirt should be at least two inches larger than the waistband and is gradually eased to the waistband. You may have to ease more if you are using a woven fabric and your figure juts out suddenly below the waistline.

This ease you have used allows the skirt or pants to follow the body contours and not ride up, causing folds of fabric to form just below the waistband.

As to your immediate problem, I would suggest making a casing of your waistband and inserting elastic to the back area only. This will hold the excess fabric close to your body and shouldn't add too much bulk. The elastic can be attached to the waistband on the inside of each of the side seams.

Eunice Farmer's booklet, "Twenty Questions," contains answers to the questions most frequently asked by readers of Sew Simple. For your copy, address a long envelope to yourself, put 13 cents postage on it and enclose it with 25 cents in an envelope addressed to Eunice Farmer, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I am the lucky recipient of four different pieces of Key West fabric as samples. It seems that all of the patterns today are geared for knits; therefore, I am having difficulty in selecting a pattern. Also, should this fabric be underlined and will it shrink when washed? —Mrs. W. M. K.

Dear Mrs. W. M. K.,
This lovely fabric must never be used for patterns that are marked for "knits only" because the stretch of the knit fabrics control the fitting.

Sew simple
by Eunice Farmer

You will need darts or gores for the fitting.

I don't know in what sections you are looking for your patterns suitable for woven fabrics. The patterns will not fit quite as close to your body. They can have some ease and fullness depending on how much your own body can stand.

Most of the ready-made garments out of the Key West fabrics are cut rather loose and darts are used for any fitting. These fabrics work beautifully in sheath dresses, shirt dresses or gored skirts. The fabric is so beautiful that it is not necessary to have lots of details in the pattern. A heavy type cotton venice lace is often used for a contrast detail. This lace must also be pre-shrunk before application.

Most of your designer-type clothes are underlined, but this is no hard and fast rule — it depends on the pattern. Did you know that this fabric is also used for pants, long skirts and children's clothes, as well as men's shirts and pants? It washes beautifully and is fresh and colorful. It is one of my favorite summer fabrics.

Department of Public Health, which regulates the private clinics. The only complaint received last year concerned the operation of one Chicago clinic.

"That was the only one I know of, and we took care of it right away," said a spokesman for the department.

Ed Van Natta, director of public relations for Lutheran General Hospital, said the abortion policy at the hospital is "running smoothly," though he prefers to consider it "termination of pregnancy."

Counseling has been intensified both before and after the procedure so "women know what to expect physically and emotionally and what it means to their religious faith," said Van Natta.

Though unable to release statistics in order to guard the privacy of patients, it is assumed most women at Lutheran General Hospital seeking nontherapeutic abortions are married, middle-aged suburban residents.

This differs from the national picture which shows one-third of abortion candidates are teenagers, and nearly three-fourths are unmarried.

No one can predict the future of abortion through national polls indicate that the silent majority endorses on-demand abortion.

A recent CBS-New York Times poll found that 67 per cent of those surveyed favored leaving the decision to have an abortion up to the woman and her doctor.

A Harris Poll taken in 1972, before the Supreme Court ruling was issued, showed only 42 per cent in favor of abortion rights. That percentage rose to 52 in 1973 the year the decision was made, and 54 per cent in 1974.

Last year the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights recommended that Congress reject all anti-abortion legislation stating that "so long as the question of when life begins is a matter of religious controversy and no choice can be rationalized on a purely secular premise, the people outlawing abortion through the amending process, would be establishing one religious view and thus inhibiting the free exercise of religion of others."

"A woman who must submit her body to carry a child to term without her consent would have submitted her will, her personal liberty to another."

The way we see it

Primaries turned tables; Democrats 'find' Carter

Six months ago, the Democratic Party appeared headed for one of the most fragmented election campaigns in history. The Republicans, with an incumbent president, seemed in better shape.

But after more than 30 primaries, stretching from snowy New Hampshire to last week's triple finale in California, New Jersey and Ohio, the Democrats and not the GOP have a clear convention choice.

Jimmy Carter now needs only to sew up a few more delegates to "officially" have the nomination. The Democratic National Committee already projects he has more than the required number. He put himself to the test in every primary election and delegate caucus across the nation.

Carter rose from near obscurity to win the support of voters and party leaders, including Mayor Richard J. Daley. We believe his performance clearly earned him the nomination.

However, GOP voters have not been nearly as decisive. The primary campaign has exposed the weaknesses of President Gerald R. Ford's voter appeal.

Ford and his opponent, ex-California Gov. Ronald Reagan, must now scurry about to uncommitted delegates and the remaining state conventions to get the backers needed to win on the first ballot.

Reagan has proved to be a strong campaigner, forcing Ford into a number of miscalculations.

A divisive Republican convention that fails to nominate a first ballot candidate would be very damaging to the party's chances in November.

The aura of Ford's incumbency would be tarnished if he had to fight through several ballots to win nomination. If Reagan wins, he would have to find a way to get help from alienated Ford supporters and from the usually more moderate-independent voters if he is to have any chance for victory.

Whatever the final outcome, there are few observers who would have predicted in January that the Democrats and not the Republicans would have a clear favorite now. It has certainly been an interesting primary season.

While the primaries proved that it is possible to select a nominee for one party, the unprecedented number of primary elections in 1976 more resembled prisoners running a torture gauntlet than democracy in action.

If there was ever an argument for a coordinated series of regional primaries to select candidates, this was the year.

Instead of having candidates chase from one end of the country to the other every week to win delegates, a regional primary system would allow voters in various geographical areas to cast their primary ballots on a single day.

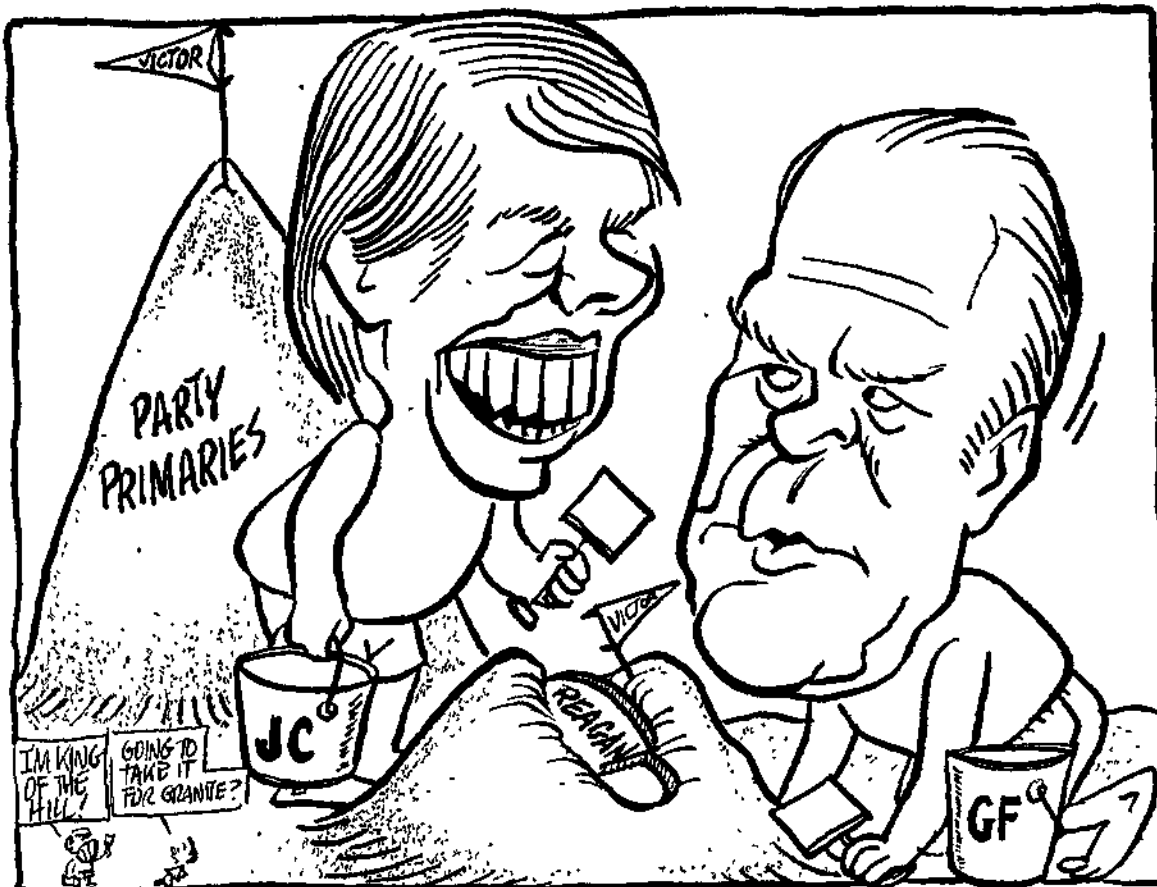

Some state officials argue such a national system would take the local flavor and control out of the primary system, but we believe that the political process would be better served if a more organized approach to selecting party nominees were devised.

The regional approach would allow candidates to focus on issuess important to a particular section of the country. It might also allow candidates the opportunity to offer a more rounded set of positions on important issues.

The proposal for regional primaries also might contain provisions for more defined campaign periods to add more organization to the process.

Running helter-skelter across the country does not seem the best way for political parties to go about presenting their candidates for election.

Mine may not look like yours, Jimmy, but I didn't have your smile.

Palatine trustees can't have it both ways in pricing issue

On Tuesday, June 1, the communication and public relations committee decided to recommend to the Palatine Village Board that an ordinance be passed requiring prices on all items if and when more than two supermarkets remove prices on 30 per cent of their items.

While this was certainly not what the Consumer Coalition had initially recommended (that prices be kept on all items), the feeling that night was that if this was the best they would do, perhaps it was better than nothing.

However, after further study of the proposal, we realized that this was not a situation in which something is better than nothing. In this case such legislation would be a disservice to the consumers of Palatine. Not only would it offer little, if any, protection, it would actually spur a race among the supermarkets to remove prices, since the first two to do so would be permitted to keep prices off all their items.

In addition, it would allow all of the supermarkets to remove prices from 29 per cent of their items. This is not 29 per cent of the items in an average market basket, but 29 per cent of all items in the store, which, if restricted to the lead sellers, could account for the major part of the average purchase.

Aside from the fact that the proposal is probably unconstitutional, in that one supermarket may remove all its prices while another may not, it leaves the consumer unprotected and yet lets the trustees off the hook, because they can claim, come election time, "We voted to protect the consumer."

The Consumer Coalition is not being unreasonable. Our actions demonstrate that we were willing to compromise. However, once we realized the ramifications of the proposed ordinance, it became evident that this was no compromise but a sell-out to the interests of the food industry.

The trustees cannot have it both ways. They must choose between the desires of the supermarkets and the needs of the consumers. Only an ordinance requiring prices to be kept on all items currently priced would protect the consumer.

Mary Glorch

Harper talks should finish

Since January of this year, the Faculty Senate of William Rainey Harper College has worked in on-again, off-again negotiations with the college board of trustees.

Salary, working conditions and recognition rights have been the issues. The court had to be called in.

To date, there's no settlement. This is sad. But even sadder is the cost of these protracted sessions to the taxpayers of the college district.

The college board of trustees brought in the illustrious law firm of Seyfarth, Shaw, Fairweather and Geraldson.

The taxpayers' cost to date for that legal help is at an estimated $50,000. And that bill isn't totalled yet. There's more to come for board legal costs.

THE FACULTY, for its part, has carried its own modest law costs through dues in the Faculty Senate, the American Federation of Teachers, Local 1600.

While the board complains of small faculty-salary requests and recognition rights, it squanders lavishly. Taxpayers aren't consulted, but their monies are dissipated.

That money is better spent on improvements in Harper. It's far wiser to settle the faculty salary and recognition requests. The difference between the faculty requests and board offers have been just $8,000. Why then pour almost six times that sum into the coffers of a Chicago law firm?

Let's not follow board practices of being penny wise and pound foolish.

William E. Miller
President, Faculty Senate

Perin's opinions draw comment

I would like to express just a few short comments in regard to the Peoples Bicentennial Commission and Monica Perin's opinions of radicals and patriots.

Now since she seems to think that millionaire landowners do not have the same views as the average person on the street, I would like to state that I am far from being rich and I believe even a wealthy man can have sense enough to make a sound observation on any said organization. Also, since I did not read the articles leading up to one entitled "PBC: Radicals and patriots," I will have to base my opinions on this article alone.

It seems that in the PBC Declaration of Economic Independence I should forget that I live in a republic! I was never guaranteed equal and democratic participation in all economic decisions that affect me, because we are living in a republic where government is run by laws and not necessarily majority rule. If more people would vote and keep up with issues to make the right decisions, then we might have good majority rule. However, since people aren't perfect and not all people are honest with themselves or others, we will never have a perfect society.

It also seems that there is a double standard in the article when to be a "left-wing radical" is considered within one's constitutional rights to exist, think and speak and yet this same article gives the impression that anyone a little right of center is self-serving, archaic or out-of-line.

In this Bicentennial Year, I do not think the American public needs a Declaration of Economic Independence which the PBC is advocating. I'm sure all it would succeed in accomplishing are the loss of rights which are now enjoyed under the U.S. Constitution.

ANYONE WITH an ounce of brains knows that if the American people aren't careful, our Constitution can be so watered down that in the name of freedom, we'll have lost that freedom and our way of life.

It's amazing that many newsmen covering life in China not too long ago thought it wonderful at the people's expression of national unity by the display of many banners, but if an American waves a flag or states a belief in love of country, this is considered by those who know no better as phoney patriotism or commercial takeover. Double standard again?

The biggest laugh of the day, even with all our country's problems, is the "abolition of these giant institutions of tyranny" which the PBC refers to in their declaration. If tyranny is so bad here, why are so many people flocking to our shores that a quota of immigrants needs to be enforced.

Parents have 'simple solution'

Well, now that the new Dist. 54 board is settling in and belt tightening, along with voter approval for the October referendum is sought, we Parents for YRS must come back with our simple solution to Dist. 54's problems.

Re-examination, belt tightening and review are great topics for any district, but after all the stress and strain of change, the district isn't dramatically improved, one feels we've lost the struggle.

Are there people in Dist. 54 who feel that our assets are not being used?

Is there anyone who isn't paying taxes this summer because our schools will close their doors on our children for three long months? No, we pay whether our schools are utilized fully or not. We pay and pay and hope for the best.

Education for many brings life-time involvement. We live, we breathe, we grow and we learn. Many people want and appreciate year-round, educational direction for their children. The calendar change YRS brings can offer this direction.

Why must we have the great summer void? Are we Rip van Winkles? How much will be lost educationally and economically as our classrooms sit empty this summer? How many children will lose direction while working parents, policemen and shopkeepers become increasingly vexed over our aimless young people?

Think of the books, facilities, materials and human resources not utilized over the summer. No other profession would dream of closing its doors for so long a period.

And what about the 20 per cent of our students with perceptual problems, who lose much headway over the summer? Their battle is up-hill at best and constant academic exposure is a necessity?

Why not have the same number of vacation days spread around the calendar at regular intervals rather than encouraging the complete abandonment of life-education practices during an out-dated agrarian summer? Man seems to function best on a regular work-rest plan. And think of the crowding which can be eliminated in vacation areas if periodic, four season vacations are available.

Two million children and their families have accepted this school calendar change and the great majority are enthusiastic about it because it makes sense, utilizing their buildings and directing their children in a way only dreamed of in the past.

Let's restructure our school calendar. Come on teachers, you don't have to live for the summer when you have time to plan, gather materials, rest and vacation with more salary when you teach more children in an extended year.

Why just make cuts when there are other, more sound solutions to our problems?

YRS can start with two neighborhood schools, one on the traditional year and one utilizing its facilities all year round. Families choose which school best suits their needs and students attend that school following its schedule.

With only 3/4 of the students in school at one time in YRS, schools can hold 33-1/3 per cent more students saving millions in construction costs. Children can start four times a year as their birthdays arrive and can be retained or accelerated 1/4 year according to need.

There are 200 YRS plans in practice around the US and they are being tailor-made to reach individual, family and community needs.

Let's not cut good programs. Let's rethink the school calendar year and give YRS a chance to help us out of this financial crisis.

SOREL, Canada, June 14 — A council of war at Gen. Sullivan's headquarters decided to evacuate American forces from Canada and the troops were given orders to march southward. The decision ended the ill-fated American military effort to wrest Canada from British hold.

Innkeepers finding fuller rooms

More fun in 'hospitality game'

by LEA TONKIN

Take the hassle out of the hospitality business and people will come back for more.

That's the philosophy of Bud Bolgrien, general manager for the new owners of the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Palatine. Bolgrien said the hotel management hopes for a turnaround in business for the year. A boost from a 60 per cent occupancy rate to 80 per cent occupancy rate is his target.

Comment from A. M. Quarles, executive vice president of the Greater Chicago Hotel and Motel Assn., shows the Palatine lodge is not the only inn that's had financial strain during the recession. "Last year was bad compared to the previous year. Many hotels are turning around. There is a general recovery all over this area," Quarles said.

BOLGRIEN'S PLANS for raising occupancy rates are shared by other innkeepers in the competitive Northwest suburban and O'Hare Airport vicinity, Quarles said. He said occupancy rates in the O'Hare area already increased to 70.2 per cent for the first four months of the year. The figure is a 7 per cent improvement from business a year earlier.

Aside from general economic trends, the key to a motel's success is its ability to serve, Bolgrien believes. "It's become popular to call it the hospitality business," he said. "It's really the eat-sleep-and-drink business. If you're only concerned about hospitality, the business may suffer."

The metamorphosis of overnight accommodations from roadside cabins with space heaters to large complexes brought new service and some confusion, Bolgrien said. "We really have done our best in this industry to confuse the public," he said.

BOLGRIEN SAID THE Howard Johnson's lodge, purchased April 1 by Musikantow Corp., plans to stick to the basics of service, not glamor. He cites the inn's location at the corner of Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway as a plus.

Yet the competition for hotel and motel business is keen in suburbia. Quarles estimates there are 8,000 area rooms.

The 7 per cent increased business at O'Hare area hotels is not matched by inns in outlying suburbs. For all Chicago suburbs during January through April, the 60.9 per cent occupancy rate is 2 per cent improvement from year-earlier levels.

As the economy improves, motels and hotels will be more willing to pass along their cost hikes to the consumer, Quarles said. He predicts new suburban hotel development will be stunted as money and building costs remain high.

Investment income benefits retirees

Dear Mr. Rosefsky: My eyes were really opened by a recent article you wrote on the effects working has on Social Security after 65. I had always known that working after 65 cut down on your Social Security benefits, but I didn't realize the extent. It caused me to re-examine my whole plan.

I'm now 60, making a good living and spending as I please. Technically, I'll retire at 65, but I had been planning to work full time until age

by Robert S. Rosefsky

70. We have a nest egg put away with a "Do not touch until age 70" sign on it (unless emergency requires it).

Based on current estimates, I can earn about $9,000 per year from age 65 to age 70, working full time. That, plus my Social Security benefits would satisfy all of our needs quite well. But as your figures pointed out, I'd be getting far less than what I bargained for.

Till now we haven't been saving anything beyond the nest egg I mentioned earlier. We could, though, stash away about $40 per week without any harm to our lifestyle. How would that change my picture, if at all, once I reached 65?

A — AS REGULATIONS now stand, once you start drawing Social Security benefits, you can earn up to $2,760 in a year without affecting your benefits. For every $2 you earn above that, you lose $1 in Social Security benefits.

The exceptions are these: if, in any given month you earn less than $230, you can still get full benefits for that month, regardless of your total annual earnings. Also, after age 72 your earnings no longer have any effect on your benefits.

Note well that "earnings" refers to money earned through work and not to investment income. That doesn't affect your benefits.

Not only is your net take-home affected by the Social Security "one-for-two" rule; but as a worker, you also have to pay income taxes and continued Social Security taxes. Thus, a couple over 65, filing jointly and earning $9,000 per year, assuming a $400 per month Social Security benefit — would end up with only $9,496 cash in hand. Their $9,000 gross earnings would be reduced to roughly $7,816 (by $844 in federal income taxes and $540 in Social Security taxes). And their Social Security benefits would be reduced from $4,800 to $1,680. So $7,816 plus $1,680 equals $9,496.

The Social Security reduction is figured as follows: by earning $9,000, they exceeded the $2,760 limit by $6,240. For every $2 over the limit they lost $1 in benefits, resulting in a loss of $3,120 from the otherwise expected $4,800. Their net, then is $1,680.

Following the same formula, the family that earned $3,000 would end up with $7,500 cash, between earnings and benefits.

In other words, if you could work part time and earn $3,000 in the year, you're only netting $2,000 less than if you worked full time for $9,000! Further, if you can stash away $40 per week for the next five years in a federally insured savings account, that will grow into a kitty that will allow you to withdraw (interest and principal) more than $2,500 per year for five full years.

The bottom line is this: Because investment income does not affect Social Security benefits, and because earned income does, you're better off with some modest savings over the next five years, then working part time for $3,000 per year, as compared with not saving now and later working full time for $9,000 per year.

Only you know what your time, then and now, is worth to you. But if you're not getting paid for it, you might as well put it to your own use rather than your employer's.

On '76 Flag Day Old Glory flies in place of respect

by SCOTT L. HAMILTON

Flag Day, June 14, while not a legal holiday, represents an historical symbol.

Congress in 1895, designated June 14 as Flag Day following the efforts of Dr. B. J. Cigrand of Batavia, Ill., to celebrate the adoption of the U.S. flag in 1777.

The flag has 13 stripes representing the original 13 colonies, but at one time the flag had 15 stripes — in 1794, following the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to the union. Two stars also were added to the original 13.

In 1818 (the year Illinois became a state) Congress enacted a law that reduced the number of stripes on the flag to 13, as a permanent reminder of the 13 original states.

THE FIRST FLAG representing the United States was flown 200 years ago on Jan. 2, 1776, at Cambridge, Mass.

Called the Grand Union Flag, the blue field bore the crosses of St. Andrew and St. George. It was on June 14, 1777, that Congress decreed the flag would have 13 stripes and 13 stars, "representing a new constellation."

A spokesman for Stars and Stripes, a flag dealer at 900 W. Rand Road, Arlington Heights, said flag sales are up more than 30 per cent over last year.

THE INCREASE is attributed to the Bicentennial, and three Bicentennial flags are offered: The stars and stripes models with the circle of 13 stars (called the Betsy Ross flag); the half moon of stars with the number "76" within the half moon; and the flag with a white field and the Bicentennial logo.

In recognition of Flag Day, Barbara Sheldon of Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission, tonight will present a Bicentennial proclamation from President Gerald R. Ford to the village board.

The Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with the Elks Lodge, is selling a flag kit, which includes the flag and an 18-foot pole.

The Hoffman Estates Village Board has proclaimed the 21 days from Flag Day to the fourth of July as a time to honor America.

Most businesses will be flying flags today.

Suitors got the message by the feel of a pumpkin

A copy of a speech made by Col. John A. Gardner in 1876 contains references to pioneer life in Tennessee. Col. Gardner, great-great-grandfather of Louise Arnold of Schaumburg, described how a certain Squire Paschall settled in that state in 1824.

In building a heavy-hewed log house with two rooms, in which Squire Paschall raised his large family, he invited his neighbors 12 miles in every direction. He got 31 hands, who were two days doing the work, with all their energies highly stimulated by the use of eight gallons of whisky.

For several years, there were no schoolhouses, no churches and no preaching. At length it was rumored kins was stored. The pumpkins served as seats, and when a young man visited a girl to court her, she would roll out a pumpkin for him to sit upon. If it was flat and comfortable, he at once knew he was in favor and would be accepted; but if it was sharp and uneasy, he knew his doom, and dis-

Pardon our slip. The May 24 Backward Glance story about the Gass homestead in Illinois was contributed by Mary C. Neubauer, mother-in-law of John P. Tracy of Elk Grove Village — not Don T. Tracy as printed.

Backward Glance

... our readers remember that a colored clergyman would preach in the neighborhood on a particular day. Curiosity and excitement at once ran high. A spiritual famine was prevailing in the land. Men, women and children wanted to hear a gospel sermon.

A DIFFICULTY arose in the minds of the women, who rarely became so deeply interested in religious matters as to become indifferent about apparel. There was a dearth of decent clothes, as well as spiritual food, in the neighborhood. How should they appear decently at church?

This was an embarrassing question on such an interesting and rare occasion. Old Mrs. Paschall was known to have the best wardrobe in the settlement. She had seven dresses, most of them cotton, made by her own hands.

"We will borrow of her!" There was a rush for her house. One pioneer never refuses another a favor. She loaned out six of her dresses for the occasion, and wore the seventh one herself to church.

IN THOSE EARLY days, people lived in huts and cabins of rough, unhewn logs, generally floorless except for the earth. They used the Forked Deer bedstead, made with but one post, with two auger holes in it, to receive two pieces of timber extending in different directions to cracks in the wall of the house. Clapboards were spread out, on which the straw bed was laid.

Under these beds, on the ground, the scanty supply of corn and pump-

Schellenberger heads International 880

Illinois champion nips Colorado winner at wire

by BOB FRISK

The long season is almost over.

It was a season filled with hours of hard work, painful work. It was a season filled with lofty goals and incredible achievements.

For Steve Schellenberger of Forest View High School, a remarkable season peaked Saturday afternoon as the sun slipped behind Dyche Stadium in Evanston and threw some cooling shadows over the hot surface.

A frantic, crowd-pleasing dash to the wire gave Schellenberger a thrilling victory over the nation's best in the 880-yard run at the International Prep Invitational and placed a glowing new chapter in a book bulging with accomplishments.

The young man with the startling, grown-up times continues to captivate track and field audiences.

Schellenberger's come-from-behind conquest, achieved as 8,000 fans roared their approval, furnished the Fifth Annual International with one of its memorable moments on a sun-baked afternoon that was loaded with dramatic action.

Eight meet records and three national marks were shattered as the International was held in Evanston for the first time, after four years on the Prospect High School track.

Schellenberger was not one in a national record category, but he did smash a meet mark, achieve his personal best at 1:49.2 and establish himself as the best of the nation's schoolboy half-milers.

It wasn't easy for this two-time Illinois champion.

The Forest View flyer is noted for stretch runs, but he had to pull out one of his finest Saturday to overtake Dyrk Dahl of Carson High School in Fountain, Colo., the Colorado state champ.

When did he know he had it won? "On the lean," smiled Schellenberger, who was very much aware that Dahl fell and finished just one-tenth of a second behind in a duel that had the crowd on its feet.

"I thought I had it," said a distraught and exhausted Dahl, who just Wednesday had authored a 1:49.9 in the AAU Juniors and also is a crack sprinter. "When we were coming in, I thought I could hold on and then I just couldn't stay up. You hear about somebody's kick but until you see it..."

Schellenberger, whose kick to the wire has frustrated many opponents in his remarkable high school career, wasn't pleased with the way his own race developed but was obviously happy with the outcome.

"I got boxed in and almost didn't start my kick in time," said the 5-foot-8, 130-pounder who developed a severe blister on a toe after his stirring run. "I had to wait until I was clear to get out."

Ken Staggs of Homewood-Flossmoor, who has shared some interesting duels with Schellenberger through the years, equalled his state time of 1:51.9 in taking the fourth place medal Saturday.

Although Schellenberger, who had a 1:20.2 for the 600, missed in his bid to snap the national 880 mark of 1:48.5, three school boy marks did tumble Saturday.

Manny Silvrio of North Bergen, N.J., topped the national hammer mark with an incredible 231-11 throw, over four feet on top of the 1972 standard set by Alvin Jackson of Providence, R.I.

Greg Martin of Pascagoula, Miss., the discus leader heading into the International, lived up to advance billing with a national mark of 202-4½, taking Ray Burton of California and a 201-6 from the books.

The girls also shared some of the spotlight with Maureen McDermott of Ontario, Canada smashing the national 880 mark with a 2:09.1. Melody Miller of Maine East, who enjoyed an outstanding Illinois high school career, flashed to a strong 2:13.7 and third place medal.

Illinois preps turned in some solid performances on the Tartan surface at Dyche Stadium with Greg Foster of Proviso East joining Schellenberger on the victory stand.

Foster, who was slow out of the blocks in the 120-yard highs, charged into the lead at the midway mark and flashed to a 13.2 clocking that equalled the national standard. He was second over the 330 intermediates by two-tenths of a second but admitted the extra six inches in height made the difference.

"I've only been working on the intermediates for about a week," he said. "I hit a couple early here and just couldn't catch up. It takes some getting used to."

Ed Delashmutt of Ft. Madison, Iowa established a meet record in the mile run with a 4:07.2 that was equalled by runnerup Dean Childs of Canada. Tom Lobsinger, the Canadian national champ, was just five-tenths of a second behind in third place in a photo finish.

Vince Perette of Shawnee Mission, Kans., set a meet mark in the triple jump at 51-6¾, and Illinois preps took three of the top six places with Ed Tate of Bloom in third (50-10), Alvin Perryman of Danville in fifth (49-10½), and Kerry Rice of Springfield in sixth (49-3).

Steve Montgomery of Susanville, Calif., who came in with a toss of 66-6, shattered the International record in the shot with an awesome effort of 68-5½. John McKenzie of Newhall, Calif., was second at 67-0½ as the two California strongboys dominated the rest of the field by almost five feet.

Jay Reardon of Kansas City, Mo., who had a 7-footer before the International, cleared 7-0¾ for a meet mark in the high jump and also picked up a second place long jump medal.

The winners in the International (see complete summary in scoreboard) leave Tuesday for Hawaii and some age-group competition, but for most the arduous campaign has taken its toll. They're ready for a break.

"It's hard to stay up not only for the big meets but also every day in preparation," said Schellenberger. "I am tired, physically and mentally."

When Schellenberger returns from Hawaii, he has no plans to run. He needs some rest.

"That's when my vacation begins," said the king of the nation's schoolboy half-milers.

The long season is almost over.

STILL ON HIS FEET after a classic 880 duel is Steve Schellenberger of Forest View High School, breaking the tape in first place with a time of 1:49.2, a new International Prep Invite record. Schellenberger showed his superlative kick to Dyrk Dahl of Colorado, Falcon hitting duo leads South stars to 7-6 win

by ART MUGALIAN

Forest View's Tom Lunak and Bill Simon provided the key base hits and Rolling Meadows rightlander John Carbery limited the powerful North bats to just one single over the last three innings as the South all-star team came from behind to defeat the North, 7-6, in the third annual Hal Sprehe Baseball Game at Forest View Sunday.

Lunak earned the game's outstanding-player award by smashing three straight singles and scoring twice after coming into the game in the fifth. The Falcon senior opened the three-run seventh inning with a hit for the South and delivered an important single in the eighth when his team took the lead for good.

The victory gives the South a two-games-to-one edge in the series, which began in 1974 to honor the late Forest View coach, Hal Sprehe, and provide a scholarship fund in his name. Sunday's game was played on Hal Sprehe Field at Forest View High School.

After South starter John Igrasek of Rolling Meadows blanked the North team without a hit through the first three innings, the North struck for four runs in the fifth off Prospect's Tim Davies. The key hit was a two-run double to center field by Steve Peters of Fremd.

In the sixth, Buffalo Grove's Steve Chobanian got credit for a home run when his line shot to center took a freak hop over the head of the center-fielder and rolled all the way to the fence. Another run in the inning gave the North a 6-3 lead, which held up until the seventh.

The South scored solo runs in the first and fourth innings on singles by Randy Brown of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg's Terry Zarbock. They scored another, unearned, run in the fifth.

Three straight singles in the bottom of the seventh loaded the bases for the South with no one out. Lunak, Simon, and Hoffman's Joe Gajewski each stroked base hits off Fremd lefty Matt Fox.

Fox got the next batter on strikes, but a possible double play ball hit by Mike Bramlett of Rolling Meadows was dropped by the second baseman as he tried to tag Gajewski. Two runs came across, making the score 6-5.

The tying run came home a moment later on a sacrifice fly off the bat of Prospect's Dave Thoma. Bramlett tried to tally the go-ahead run on a single to left by Forest View's Ron Turner, but he was out — Chobanian to catcher Kevin O'Brien of Arlington.

Nee Nunez of Rolling Meadows led off the eighth inning for the South with a base on balls against North reliever Mark Bonucchi of St. Viator. After Schaumburg's Bob Connell forced Nunez on a bunt attempt, Lunak lined a single to center sending Connell to second. Then Simon followed with a screaming shot to center and Connell raced home ahead of the throw, which was off-target anyway, as the South took a 7-6 advantage.

Bonucchi got out of the jam with no more damage and Carbery went out to the mound to try to hold the North for one more inning.

Carbery, who had come into the game in the sixth and had surrendered Chobanian's homer, nevertheless settled down after that. But he walked Arlington's Brett Frase and Wheeling's Bucky Black to start the ninth, and when Bob Terreberry of Wheeling laid down a sacrifice bunt the North had the potential winning runs in scoring position.

But Carbery got O'Brien to bounce to Meadows' Guy Tenuta, who was playing in on the grass at second. Tenuta fired home to Simon who was waiting to tag Frase for the second out of the inning.

Then Carbery snuck a big-breaking curve ball past Peters for called strike three and the game was over.

Special ceremonies before the game featured a few words by former Forest View Principal Dr. Larry Jenness and trophy presentation to last year's MVP, Mike Quade of Prospect High School.

World record-holder watches drama in 880

The world record-holder in the 880-yard run watched Forest View's Steve Schellenberger capture his dramatic victory Saturday at Dyche Stadium in Evanston.

Rick Wohlhuter, who grew up in St. Charles, Ill., and now runs for the University of Chicago Track Club, was a special guest at the Fifth International Prep Track and Field Invitational.

In 1974 Wohlhuter set the world 880 mark with a clocking of 1:44.1 in Oslo, Norway.

Wohlhuter, like Schellenberger, was a two-time Illinois prep champion. He was third as a sophomore at St. Charles and then won the state half-mile titles in 1966 (1:52.0) and 1967 (1:52.3).

Wohlhuter's personal best in high school was 1:51.9. Schellenberger ran 1:49.2 Saturday.

"Do you think I have potential?" Schellenberger asked Wohlhuter.

"You may have," the world record-holder kidded after watching the dash to the wire in the 880. "But only if you get some leg speed."

Inman wins 1st PGA tour title

Three-year tour veteran Joe Inman suffered a bogey on the 16th hole, but still managed to finish with a 71 Sunday for an 11-under-par 277 and a one-stroke victory over Tom Weiskopf and Grier Jones in the $250,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

The victory, Inman's first on the PGA tour, was worth $50,000. His best previous finish this season was a tie for 15th in the Florida Citrus Open.

Inman moved into the lead with a birdie on the 14th hole as he hit a shot from a fairway bunker to within three feet of the flag. But he got into trouble on the 16th when a shot out of a fairway bunker went about 60 feet wide of the flag and well off the green.

His third shot was just shy of the green, but he putted to within inches and made a bogey to finish one stroke over Weiskopf and third-round leader Jones.

Jones entered the final day with a one-stroke lead over Inman, but faltered to a one-over-par 73 Sunday for his 278 total. Weiskopf, who began the day three strokes back at eight under, had a final-round 70 to tie Jones for second place.

Inman had birdie opportunities on the final two holes but was unable to make the putts.

Simpson wants to go to Coast

A team will have to compensate the Buffalo Bills with talent — and possibly money — in order to obtain the services of celebrated running back O. J. Simpson.

That's the word from Bills owner Ralph C. Wilson after meeting with the 28-year-old Simpson during the weekend. Simpson, who was Los Angeles' premier running back 1967-68 while at the University of Southern California, said Saturday he wants to be traded to a West Coast team to be near his family.

Both Simpson and Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom have denied reports that a deal was underfoot.

Simpson, who has been with Buffalo for seven years since graduating from USC, still has 2 more years in his contract, plus a one-year option.

He has indicated he wants to play at least one more year before becoming a full-time actor — he already has been in three movies — and he has indicated if he doesn't get his West Coast wish, he will quit football.

Wilson said he was willing to offer Simpson a phenomenal raise, but the athlete wouldn't budge from his request to be traded.

"I came here to adjust O.J.'s contract," Wilson told the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "I was prepared to pay him a million dollars for the next two years. But he told me clearly he did not want to discuss money. He said no amount would get him back to Buffalo. He wants to play on the West Coast — or he will quit."

The Buffalo owner admitted Simpson's departure could have a serious effect on the team's upcoming season, but said he made Simpson a deal.

"I made him the following proposition: I promised to trade him to a West Coast club, but only if I received fair value. I made that absolutely clear that I would not let someone take advantage of the situation and try to steal him."

Wilson said if he could not get fair compensation for Simpson, "then I told O.J. that he could just retire quietly from football. I said I was not going to be anyone's pigeon. He agreed to these terms. We shook hands and parted."

Of the four West Coast teams — Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland and San Diego — Simpson said he would most like to play for Los Angeles. He said he does not want to play for San Diego.

"I went through some tough years on a rebuilding team already and I think have already paid my dues," said Simpson, ruling out the Chargers.

As to playing for the Rams, he said, "Yes, obviously that's the team I would prefer."

But Rosenbloom, who may have to give up running back Lawrence McCutcheon as part of a deal, said nothing is in the works to get Simpson into a Ram uniform.

"No one associated with the Rams, including myself, has talked with Ralph Wilson or anyone from the Buffalo Bills about O. J. Simpson, nor have we talked with Simpson," he said.

"Certainly we'd be interested in someone of O.J.'s caliber, but the question I would ask is, 'Does O. J. Simpson really want to play for anyone?'"

Holtzman deal is imminent

The Baltimore Orioles Sunday announced that a tentative agreement has been reached with another American League club for a trade of pitcher Ken Holtzman.

An Orioles spokesman said the deal with the unnamed club will not be completed unless Holtzman signs a contract with that team. An unconfirmed report had Holtzman going to Kansas City.

Holtzman was obtained by the Orioles earlier this year from Oakland but has not signed a contract.

The spokesman said negotiations are continuing and no further announcement will be made until Monday morning. Holtzman reportedly was demanding approximately $450,000 for a three-year contract.

Holtzman, 33, was slated to pitch against Kansas City Sunday but did not because of the trade possibility.

Chicago Sting smash Atoms 5-1

The Chicago Sting routed the Philadelphia Atoms 5-1 in an American Soccer League game Sunday at Comiskey Park.

Chicago's Mike Ryo, an 18-year-old who just graduated from high school, was voted the most valuable player of the game for scoring two goals and assisting on another.

Trillo's 3 run double aids Cubs in 8-3 win

by DON FRISKE

Manny Trillo liked what he was seeing from Larry Dierker each time he came to the plate Sunday and he finally got that message to the Houston Astros' starting pitcher.

Unfortunately for Dierker, he threw one too many high fastballs to Trillo, whose double led the Cubs to their fourth straight triumph, an 8-3 win over the Astros.

With two outs in the Cubs' fifth inning, Trillo batted with the bases loaded. Jerry Morales' sacrifice fly, which brought Joe Wallis home, had just given the Cubs a 3-2 lead.

Jose Cardenal and Bill Madlock were on first and second and both advanced when the Astros tried to get Wallis at the plate.

After an intentional walk to Pete LaCock, Trillo was ready for Dierker's high fastball. He fouled off the first two and then hit one high into the wind, which was blowing out of Wrigley Field.

At first it looked like Astro left fielder Jose Cruz would catch the ball, but then, as the wind carried it, the fans thought Trillo might have a grand slam.

Instead, the ball bounced off the left field wall, just beyond the reach of Cruz, and all three runs scored to give the Cubs a 6-2 lead.

"That's what he was throwing to me all day," said Trillo of Dierker's high fastball. "I like that pitch."

The double allowed Ray Burris to pick up his third win of the season against eight losses. He gave up nine hits, two walks, and three runs in the five innings he pitched.

"I was throwing good and my fastball was working the best for me," Burris said.

He was relieved by Paul Reuschel after giving up two singles to lead off the Houston sixth.

Reuschel allowed just two infield hits in four innings and was aided by two double plays. He earned his second save of the year, both against the Astros this weekend.

The visitors took a 2-0 lead with two runs in the first inning on three singles and a walk. But the Cubs tied the score in the second when Morales singled and came home on LaCock's double to left field.

LaCock went to third when Trillo grounded out to the right side of the infield and scored on Steve Swisher's sacrifice fly.

Then LaCock led off the eighth with a home run, which entered the bleachers just to the right of the green turf in center field.

"It's fun. I love it," said LaCock, who is hustling to stay in the starting lineup. "When you get the chance to play you have to try hard."

He was 2-for-3 Sunday with three runs and two RBIs.

Trillo followed LaCock's shot with another double to left field and he scored on Reuschel's sacrifice fly after Dave Rosello's Texas League single sent him to third.

Trillo said that the groin area of his left leg has been bothering him since the Cubs were in Houston last weekend. But he added that he loves to play every day. He has missed only one game this year and said he "feels stiff after a day off."

All of the Cub batters were having off days last weekend when the Cubs lost four straight to Houston in the Astrodome. Trillo gave this as one of the reasons the Cubs did so well against the Astros at home the past three days.

"When we got shut out twice in Houston we decided we didn't want that to happen again," the Cubs' second baseman said. "I guess that's one of the reasons we hit well this weekend."

The Cubs collected 32 hits and 21 runs against Astro pitching in the three-game series. They play tonight in Cincinnati and the game will be presented on ABC's Monday Night Baseball.

Indians take 2 from White Sox as Carty stars

From Herald Wire Services
CLEVELAND — Designated hitter Rico Carty, a former Cub, decided to break out of his month-long slump Sunday and it cost the Chicago White Sox a doubleheader washout and a big zero-for-four in the series with the Indians.

Carty's first homer in a month and a roundtripper off the bat of Indian Frank Duffy — his first since June 23, 1975 — highlighted Cleveland's 8-5 triumph in the first game, and Carty blasted a bases-loaded pinch-double to help the Indians put together a six-run eighth-inning rally for a 9-7 nightcap victory.

In the first game Carty, who had been hitting a lowly .153 since May 21 when he sported a .383 batting average, hit his first homer since May 12 in the fourth and also banged out a single and triggered a two-run sixth inning with a double off the center field wall.

Duffy hit his first homer since 1973 in the fourth after the Indians scored once in the second and chased Sox starter and loser Bart Johnson, 3-7, with a three-run outburst in the seventh.

Pat Kelly led the Sox attack with three hits including a solo homer in the seventh off reliever Tom Buskey.

Pat Dobson gained his seventh victory against five losses as both clubs committed a total of seven errors. The veteran right-hander held the White Sox to three hits over the first five innings and pitched himself out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth.

The White Sox jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap and grabbed a 4-2 lead in the third on a two-run homer by Jim Spencer.

Reliever Dave Hamilton had held the Indians to only one run in 5-1/3 innings of relief and the White Sox took a 6-3 lead into the eighth inning when Clay Carroll came on to pitch. After one out, Jorge Orta threw wild to first on a grounder by George Hendrick. Singles by John Lowenstein and Buddy Bell filled the bases and Carty's pinch double tied the score at 6-6.

Terry Forster took over for Carroll and walked pinch-hitter Duffy. Larvel Blanks followed with a triple to left and Doug Howard singled home Blanks for the final Cleveland run.

Reliever Jim Kern, who went five innings before being lifted in the ninth, picked up his sixth victory against two losses while Carroll, who entered the game with a 1.79 ERA, is now 3-3.

DeRosa to supervise summer track program

The Buffalo Grove Park District will sponsor a summer track and field program for junior high and high school students from June 21 to July 30, supervised by Buffalo Grove High School track and cross country coach Frank DeRosa.

Athletes will be tutored in fundamentals of sprinting, distance running, jumping, hurdling, discus and shot put. Competitive track meets will be included in the program.

Sessions will be held three times a week — Monday, Wednesday, and Friday — from 4 to 6 p.m. at Buffalo Grove High School's track. Registration cost for the program is $6 for Buffalo Grove residents and $12 for nonresidents.

Application may be made to the Buffalo Grove Park District, 150 Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove. Forms can be picked up at the high school, the park district office, or the Olympic Torch at the Plaza Verde shopping center.

Olympic tickets still available

Tickets for the area visit by the United States Olympic basketball team will be on sale again this week at the Mount Prospect State Bank, Busse and Emerson in Mount Prospect.

Tickets are $6 each for the game Thursday evening, June 24 between the Olympians and a group of all-stars coached by Ray Meyer of DePaul University.

The game will be played in the Prospect High School fieldhouse and is co-sponsored by the Mount Prospect State Bank and the Prospect High School Boosters Club.

Versatile

Sheila Young stars on skates, bicycle singlerunners, let alone beat the flow-er of European skating rinks. Holland, for example, has nine Olympic skating rinks. And Holland is not much bigger than Philadelphia.

Sheila Young, who has relatives living in Mount Prospect, is the only American woman ever to win three medals at one Winter Olympics. She also holds the world 500-meter record.

She spotted the Europeans almost two months' training every year. Their rinks open early in October. Our rink opens late in November.

When Sheila found she was falling behind in preparation, she hit upon a typical American solution — wheels. She didn't turn to roller skates, but to a bicycle. A skater's edge, she says, is in the hamstring muscles, and the back of the legs and thighs. Bicycling was so ideal for building them up that Sheila was soon logging three to four hours a day on her 10-speed two-wheeler.

The next thing she knew, she got so good at bicycling that she began to begrudge the time ice skating took away from it. She won a world sprint championship at Marseilles.

The nice thing about bike racing is you don't need ice. But you do need a Velodrome. And Sheila moved to Allentown, Pa., to be near a good one.

Bicycling is not yet an Olympic women's sport, a last vestige of male chauvinist stubbornness that the Russians may rectify at Moscow in 1980. If Gloria Steinem doesn't do it earlier.

Ordinarily, when a young girl takes up ice skating, it's the kind where you skate to Beethoven in a tutu with a rose in your teeth. It's just a kind of complicated practice for the Ice Capades and all the money mom and dad shell out turns out just to be a wise investment.

Unfortunately, the ice shows don't have openings for people who skate across the room at 40 m.p.h. Those skaters have a future only with the Philadelphia Flyers. And, as well as she can skate, Sheila Young wants to keep all her teeth and ears, and has no desire to backcheck Phil Esposito or go into the corners with the Broad Street Bullies.

Sheila has been one of a select company of world-class athletes in Las Vegas at the Riviera Hotel for the annual Dewar's Celebrity tennis tournament.

Wimbledon it's not, but the courts are full of guys wearing Super Bowl rings, multiple Heisman Trophy winners, ex-home run kings, Rama quarterbacks, and down linemen from the NFL.

The Ice Follies has not sent truckloads of money, but Sheila is a celebrity in her own world. "I never did expect to make millions out of something I enjoyed doing. I speed-skated because I enjoyed it." Still, not very many people have a matched set of Olympic medals as she does.

Of course, there's always the possibility that Sheila will find that tennis should have been her sport all along. After all, we have hundreds of thousands of tennis courts than the Dutch, even though we may have only one-ninth of their ice rinks.

But, then, there's the good news. So long as we struggle along with only one Olympic-size ice rink, Sheila's place in history is going to be secure. We can turn out lots of tennis, football, basketball, and hockey players. But so long as we have just one facility, the only thing we're really gonna be able to do with our ice is chill our martinis.

NOTICE is hereby given that a Public Hearing will be held by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Buffalo Grove on Monday, June 14, 1976, at 8:00 P.M. in the Municipal Building, 50 Raupp Boulevard, Buffalo Grove, Illinois, to consider the following matter:

SUBJECT: Petition to the Village of Buffalo Grove to rezone 12.5443 acres currently zoned R-2 Special Use to B-4 (commercial).

APPLICANT: Leonard Krause of Grand Spaulding Dodge as owner of the property.

STREET PROPERTY: That part of the west 1/2 of Section 10, Township 42 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian, bounded by a line described as follows:

Commencing at a point in the north line of the northwest 1/4 of said Section 10, said point being 177.58 ft. west of the measured along said north line, which bears north 88 degrees 25' 40" west, the northeast corner thereof;

Thence south 00 degrees 03' 37" west, 250.00 ft. to the point of beginning of the parcel to be described; thence continuing south 00 degrees 03' 37" west, 821.20 ft.; thence north 80 degrees 23' 40" west along the south line of the north 1/2 of said Section 10, said point being 177.58 ft. west of the measured along said north line, which bears north 88 degrees 25' 40" west, the northeast corner thereof;

Thence north 00 degrees 03' 37" east, 821.20 ft. to a point in the south line of Dundee Road 500.00 ft. east measured along said south line, which bears south 89 degrees 23' 40" east; the west line of the east 1/2 of the NW 1/4 of said Section 10, thence south 89 degrees 23' 40" east along the last mentioned southline, 800.00 ft.; thence south 41 degrees 41' 02" east, 254.70 ft. to the point of beginning in Cook County, Illinois, 12.5443 acres.

Exception therefrom: That part of the East half of the northwest quarter of Section 10, Township 42 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian, bounded by a line described as follows:

Commencing at the later section of the west line of east 1/2 of the NW 1/4 of said Section 10, with the south line of the north 1/2 of the east 1/2 of the NW 1/4 of said Section 10, thence south 89 degrees 23' 40" east along said south line, 66.50 ft. to the point of beginning of the parcel to be described;

Thence continuing south 89 degrees 23' 40" east along said south line 511.50 ft.; thence south 10 degrees 23' 08" east, 279.57 ft.; thence north 85 degrees 54' 10" west, 213.06 ft.; thence south 81 degrees 37' 03" west, 321.14 ft. to a point in the east line of Old Arlington Heights Road; thence north 00 degrees 03' 37" east along said east line, 319.00 ft. to the point of beginning in Cook County, Illinois, 3.3854 acres.

COMMON DESCRIPTION: Approximately 15 acres east of Old Arlington Heights Road and south of Dundee Road.

REQUESTED ACTION: A rezoning of 12 acres from R-2 Special Use to B-4 Commercial with the remaining 3.10 acres to be left as R-2 Special Use.

All documents and exhibits in connection with this application for a change in zoning are on file with the Village Clerk of the Municipal Building, 50 Raupp Boulevard, Buffalo Grove, Illinois, and may be examined by any interested party.

All persons present at the Public Hearing will be given an opportunity to be heard.

Published by the authority of the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Buffalo Grove, this 10th day of June, 1976.

Everything about this fine Premiere Stoneware by Mikasa is expensive.

Except our price.

PLUS A FREE DESSERT DISH WITH EACH SETTING.

Lots of things make Premiere Stoneware by Mikasa expensive.

Like the people who craft it. Mikasa is one of the world's largest makers of dinnerware. Fine quality dinnerware found in the finest department stores and specialty shops. The kind that's still a classic of the potter's art.

There's the expensive, hand-painted design that brightens each piece. Unlike patterns you see on most dinnerware, Premiere is an artistic study. Ranging from the soft hues of a newly-ripened strawberry, to willows on a riverside, or the natural elegance of brownstone. Patterns for everyday use, and special occasions, too.

Premiere Stoneware by Mikasa is fire-glazed at high temperatures to make it non-porous and non-absorbent. It's stain-resistant, won't craze or crack, and resists chipping. So you can use it with confidence in your oven and dishwasher.

And after all the expensive things that make stoneware like Premiere by Mikasa expensive, you'd probably expect the price to be the most expensive thing of all.

But now, each time you save $25 at any North West Federal Savings Center, you can get a 5-piece setting* for just $6.95. Plus a free dessert dish. A 5-piece serving set including cream pitcher, covered sugar bowl, vegetable/salad bowl, and 12" round buffet platter is available for $14.95 with a $25 deposit.

It's North West Federal Savings Time... 63 Hours a Week!

Don't miss this opportunity. Because this is a limited time offer. And the price of Premiere by Mikasa will be going up again. Where it belongs.

New vandal, drug laws considered

Ordinances that would give Des Plaines the authority to handle vandalism and minor drug cases at the local level are being considered by city officials.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz says aldermen are considering ordinances similar to measures recently passed by Deerfield.

If adopted, the ordinances would decriminalize vandalism and minor drug offenses by juveniles, and make parents responsible for the actions of their children. Such ordinances would allow the offenses to be treated like traffic violations.

IN ADDITION TO Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove and 10 North suburban communities are considering adoption of Deerfield's vandalism ordinance.

Some officials say decriminalization would allow swifter prosecution of apprehended vandals and minor drug offenders. Vandals and drug offenders now are prosecuted under state criminal law, which some officials have criticized, charging that convicted offenders often go free and unpunished.

The ordinances passed in Deerfield provide for fines from $25 to $500 for youths found guilty of vandalism or minor drug charges.

The measures were proposed in Des Plaines by Ald. Irene Birchfield, 5th, and have been sent to the city council's city code and judiciary committee for study.

HINTZ SAID THAT while the ordinances probably would ensure better enforcement of marijuana and vandalism laws, he believes they could create confusion.

"We have laws on the books already," he said. "I think differences locally in these laws and the penalties for violating them can cause confusion among residents."

"I think if these ordinances are adopted by municipalities they should be uniform," Hintz said. "I think the ordinances should be about the same so if a person has one foot in Des Plaines and another in Mount Prospect they would receive the same penalty."

The police chief said he likes the idea of decriminalizing vandalism and minor drug offenses, but has "mixed emotions" about the fines that would be imposed against offenders.

"I HAVE A QUESTION as to what happens to a family on welfare or relief that can't pay the fine," he said. "Whereas some other guy has the money and pays the fine and that's the end of it."

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, said he has not set a date for a hearing on the two proposed ordinances.

Ald. Carmen Sarlo, 6th, chairman of the city's youth activity committee, said he has scheduled a hearing before the youth commission for June 29.

"I think these ordinances might be very good," he said. "I think the youth commission should review them and give Mr. Agram's committee some input."

Bicycle, property auction June 26

The Des Plaines Police Dept. will conduct a public auction June 26 to sell unclaimed bicycles and other miscellaneous property the city has accumulated.

The auction will begin at 10 a.m. at the Des Plaines Public Works Garage, 1111 Campground Rd.

Street upgrade starts; August finish forecast

Des Plaines' annual street improvement program is under way. Completion of the $230,000 project is set for Aug. 1.

Ellis Perl, assistant city engineer, said the program will include resurfacing, repaving and sealing about 12 miles of streets, and the replacement of 5,000 feet of curbs and gutters throughout the city.

The curb and gutter work began June 7, he said. The rest of the work is to begin by the end of the month.

The city council last month approved construction contracts for the work, which will be paid with motor fuel taxes.

THE ASPHALT repaving, the most extensive improvement, will be done on 25 streets. The process consists of heating and scraping off part of the existing pavement and combining it with additional asphalt to form new pavement.

The resurfacing work will be done to 21 streets. That work consists of spreading liquid asphalt on the existing pavement and covering it with additional solid asphalt.

Perl said the repaving and resurfacing will increase the structural strength of the streets so that major repairs will not be needed for the next five to 10 years.

The sealing, the least extensive of the work, will be done to 16 streets. It consists of filling cracks with liquid asphalt.

THE ANNUAL street program is not part of routine repairs and maintenance performed by the city throughout the year. Officials said streets not repaired this year will be fixed as part of next year's program.

Perl said the $250,000 improvement of Lee Street from Mannheim Road to Howard Street is not part of the annual street program.

The Lee Street work will consist of widening, repaving and installing new curbs and gutters. The city will open bids for the project July 7, with Nov. 1 as the completion date.

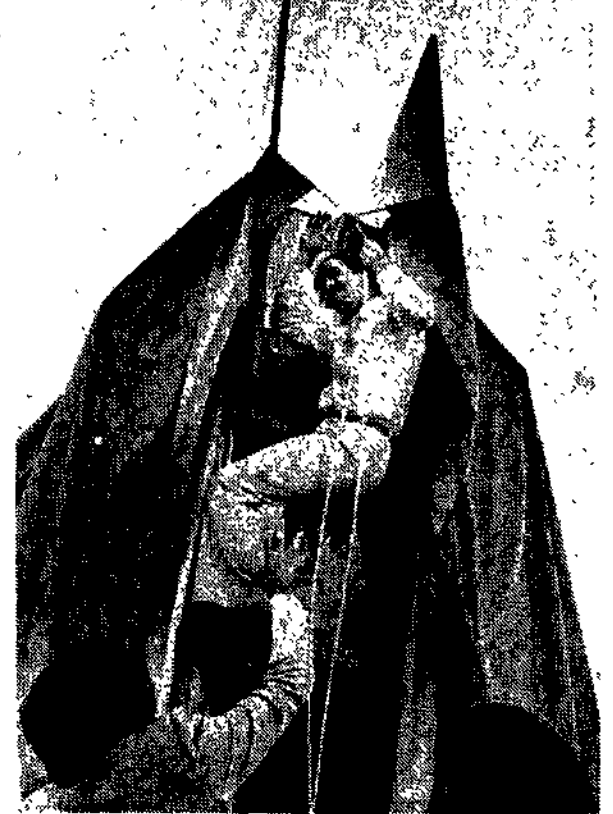

Perl said the city plans to reconstruct Lee Street from Howard Street to Touhy Avenue next year. All work will be paid for with motor fuel tax funds.

Mayor Herbert Behrel pulls, but the cover stays.

At last... a $10,000 study in steel is unveiled.

Dennis Grottola unties the cover's rope.

Art for the masses via another lawn sculpture

It wasn't another Picasso, but it was an industrial contribution to artistic expression in the Northwest suburbs.

Interstate Steel Co., a steel distribution and warehouse firm at 4011 Touhy Ave. in Des Plaines, unveiled a front-lawn sculpture late Friday that has an estimated value of $10,000.

The sculpture, designed by Albert Cout, was a tribute to the company's "day-to-day working with coiled and plated steel," the artist said.

The fire engine red abstract sculpture, which stands five feet and weighs 8 tons, is an intermingling of circles and squares that took a year to design and build.

Cout, a Skokie graphics designer, said the sculpture was his first and he hopes it will "help set a continuing trend of art in the suburbs."

THE SCULPTURE, which has no official title but is called "Sculpture One" by the artist, is the second major art work to be dedicated in a Northwest suburban industrial area during the past two years.

The first was, "The Bather," designed by the late Pablo Picasso and constructed last year at the Gould Center, on Golf Road near the Northwest Tollway in Rolling Meadows.

About 300 employees and customers of Interstate Steel attended the unveiling ceremonies, which were highlighted by circus-like tents, a strolling Mexican band, hot hors d'oeuvres, and glasses of champagne on the company's front lawn.

The sculpture, made of one-inch steel plate, was constructed at the Touhy Avenue warehouse.

Young says Mikva misused funds

Republican congressional candidate Samuel H. Young Sunday accused his opponent, U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, of improperly using aides for political purposes while paying them with government money.

Young, of Glenview, leveled the charges during a Chicago press conference, Sunday, which was called to announce a series of debates Young wants later this summer.

The former congressman, who lost to Mikva in 1974, accused the Democrat of using Brady Williamson, a former press aide, and aide Jack Marco, Mikva's administrative assistant, for political activities.

MIKVA REJECTED Young's charges and labeled them "utter nonsense."

"I have always made it a point to keep my congressional staff away from campaign activities during business hours. We allow them to work on the campaign on their own time," Mikva said.

Mikva explained some employees were paid for campaign activities. He said Williamson was paid from both federal and campaign funds in 1972 because he worked in both areas.

Young said his allegations against Mikva are similar to accusations made in the recent sex scandal involving U.S. Rep. Wayne Hays, who has been accused of paying a woman a $14,000 government salary to serve as his mistress.

He accused Mikva of "abusing government employees in a manner similar to the charges against Wayne Hays." Young softened his statement later by saying Mikva was "not guilty of any moral improprieties."

YOUNG'S CHARGES regarding Marco center on the fight in the Illinois General Assembly in 1975 over changing congressional district boundaries in Illinois. The proposed boundaries, designed by allies of Mayor Richard J. Daley, a political foe of Mikva's, probably would have cost the Evanston Democrat his seat. Mikva lost his seat in the 2nd Congressional District in a similar remap fight in 1971.

Marco, who has also managed Mikva's congressional campaigns, spent several weeks in Springfield opposing the remap fight.

"The charge against Marco is utter nonsense. What was at stake here was the kind of representation this district would get," Mikva said.

He said Marco's expenses in Springfield were paid from a congressional office fund that does not include any government money.

YOUNG ADMITTED during the press conference he and many other Republicans opposed the redistricting plan, but he contended he would have expressed his opposition through elected state officials from the area rather than by sending a personal aide to Springfield.

Mikva also agreed to debate Young during the congressional campaign.

The two men Young beat in the March primary to win the GOP nomination, State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, and Daniel Hales, attorney from Wilmette, flanked Young at the press conference, but they had no comment on his remarks.

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

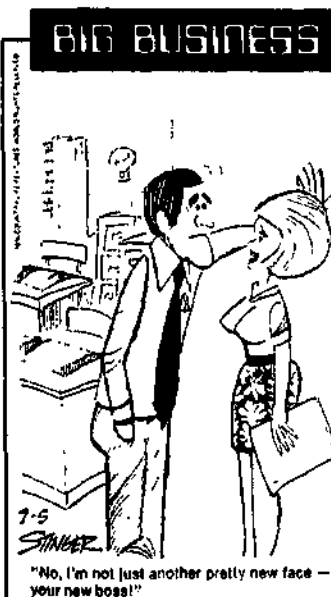

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers

affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Rosefsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Rosefsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Gemini Junior High School

Gemini Junior High School, 8855 N. Greenwood, Niles, will hold its graduation ceremony at 8 p.m. today in the spectator gym at Maine North High School, 9511 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

East Maine Dist. 63 Supt. G. Alan Gogo will present the 423 member graduating class and Board Member Richard Smith will accept the class.

Donald G. Huebner, principal of Gemini, will address the graduates. Board members presenting diplomas include Larry Reiss, Philip Deckowitz, Barbara Kipnis and Smith.

Music will be provided by the Dist. 63 orchestra.

In general . . .

The Preschool Educational Center, 8836 Western Ln., Des Plaines, has a number of field trips planned for their summer day camp of two-and-a-half to 6-year-old preschoolers.

Their list of activities in addition to a regular curriculum includes trips to the Lincoln Park Zoo, Shedd Aquarium, Palwaukee Airport, Animal World, Northwestern Stables, nature walks and ball games.

For information, call 677-8252 or 296-6644.

High School Dist. 207

The Italian Club of Maine East High School contributed $200 to the Italian Earthquake Relief Fund by having a candy and bake sale recently at the school.

The club also has elected as its new officers for next semester Rino Volpe, president; Mike Magnani, vice-president; Lori Fox, secretary; and Nancy Palcheck, treasurer.

French Club officers for the 1976-77 Maine East High School year are Carolyn Glassman, president; Barbara Goodman, vice president; and Andrea Gordon, secretary-treasurer.

Ralph Tobias will serve as president of the Maine East High School German Club for the 1976-77 school year. Michelle Swiderski is vice president, Laurie Chrobak is treasurer and Kathy Kaiser is secretary.

Judy Stern has been elected president of the Maine East High School Russian Club for the upcoming school year. Working with Judy are Gary Schmidt, vice president, and Phil Bierman, secretary-treasurer.

The local scene

Bookmobile shifts slate

The schedule for the Des Plaines Library bookmobile has been changed.

All Monday through Thursday stops will be made from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. instead of in the afternoon. Saturday stops will become Friday stops. Hawaii Park will become a weekly stop and the Big Bend Drive stop will be discontinued. For more information, call the library at 627-5551.

English classes at library

English classes for non-English speaking adults 17 and older continue Saturday from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m. under the direction of Esther Culton at the Des Plaines Public Library. During the summer there will be a Thursday class from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and from 8 to 9 p.m.

The adult book discussion group will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Wednesdays. "Watership Down" by Richard Adams is the current selection and paperback copies are available at the library, 841 Graceland Ave.

Parks art class exhibit

The sketch and paint classes of the Des Plaines Park District will exhibit oil paintings at the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave., today through June 25. Refreshments will be served from 7 to 9 p.m. today and the instructor will be available to discuss the art program offered by the park district. Some paintings will be for sale.

Trinity blood donor drive

Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 Algonquin Rd., will participate in a city-wide blood donation drive from 4 to 9 p.m. June 21 at the church.

The drive is a part of the Des Plaines blood donor program in which residents can receive blood replacement free of charge if 4 per cent of Des Plaines' citizens donate blood. Donors who take part in the Trinity drive will be guaranteed free blood replacement for themselves and their families.

Donor pledge cards are available at the church and should be returned by Sunday. Donors will be notified of the time for their donation.

Donors must be between 17 and 65 and weigh 100 pounds or more. Persons also can call the church office at 827-8656 after Sunday to participate.

24 youths confirmed

The First Congregational Church of Des Plaines, 788 Graceland Ave. recently confirmed 24 youths who have spent the past two years in preparation for membership in the church. The confirmands are: Tom Anderskew, Dawn Anderson, Scott Bentley, Lizzie Borsch, Jay Dahl, Suzette Gardner, Dean Gay, Dick Gearhart, Tammy Hinde, Brian Kalita, Mary Beth Kisslinger, Tara Nesbit, David Niles, Amy Nyberg, Andy Nyberg, Scott Rosenberg, Markay Schauer, Gwen Streckert, Katy Svoboda, Chris Thursty, Amy Tuttle, Sue Van Scoyoc, Mark Weaver and Sara Zebos.

Church school registration

Early registration is being held for the summer vacation adventure school sponsored by the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines.

"Friends and Neighbors, Yesterday and Today" is the theme for the school, which will meet Aug. 2 through 13 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Registration forms can be picked up at the church, Graceland and Marion streets, Des Plaines.

Two trips are planned during the session, including a day-long excursion to Pioneer Park in Aurora and another to Gages Lake Beach near Grayslake.

Registration fee is $8 per child and $4 for bus fare. The school is open to children from kindergarten through seventh grade.

Reif to be ordained

Joel Reif was ordained into the Christian ministry Sunday at Christ Church of the United Church of Christ, Cora and Henry avenues.

The Rev. Fred G. Traut, executive director of the Chicago Metropolitan Assn., Illinois Conference of the United Church of Christ, conducted the vows and the laying on of hands. He will be assisted by the Rev. R. K. Wobbe, pastor of Christ Church; the Rev. James W. Jackson, associate pastor of Christ Church; the Rev. Jack Reif, First Baptist Church, Cottage Hills, Ill.; Dr. E. A. Jenkins, Northern Baptist Seminary, Oak Brook; and the Rev. Paul Rawley, St. Paul's United Church of Christ, Downers Grove. Dr. Jenkins gave the ordination meditation.

Reif is a graduate of Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kan., and the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary. He was the youth minister for Christ Church in 1974 and spent his internship at the First Baptist Church of La Grange. Reif will serve as pastor of St. John's United Church of Christ in Brighton, Ill.

Grant sought for new facility

Mental health fund request today

Officials from the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center today will present their request for a share of $631,000 federal grant money before a 21-member citizens' advisory committee.

The mental health center is seeking $264,000 of the federal money plus $99,000 in an allied state grant program to fund 55 per cent of the $660,000 cost of a new permanent facility at Nerge and Rohlfing roads, Elk Grove Village.

Four other mental health centers are seeking part of the available federal money.

The citizens' advisory committee, headed by Prof. Hiram Sibley of the University of Illinois School of Public Health, will give each of the five applicants a half-hour hearing today in Chicago. The committee is to make its recommendation to the Illinois Department of Mental Health Tuesday on who should get the federal money.

OTHER MEMBERS of the committee include Mary Lee Leahy, state director of children and family services; Joseph Cronin, superintendent of the Illinois Dept. of Education; James L. Trainor, state director of public aid; and Dr. Joyce Lashoff, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

Representing the mental health center at the hearing will be executive director Jordan Rosen, board president George T. Spees, board member

Paul Rettberg, coordinator of development Anne Fraser and possibly Brother Felix Bettendorf of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Rosen said State Representatives Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Virginia B. Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, also will attend.

According to the state priority ranking for grant money, the mental health center ranks last of the five applicants. However, the award is not necessarily based solely on the rankings, according to Douglas Spencer, manager of the mental health department's community services division.

Once the committee makes its recommendation, the department of mental health makes the final recommendation to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

Trustee seeks panel on unit issue

by JUDY JOBBITT

An Elk Grove Village trustee is attempting to form a group of citizens to get answers to educational question on the unit school district issue.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said she is contacting about 25 people she believes share her concerns about the effect the formation of an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district would have on existing educational programs.

She said she wants "concrete answers" from proponents of the unit district that "we won't lose any programs" by forming the proposed district.

MRS. VANDERWEEL said she has heard about possible financial benefits and more local control by forming the district, but is concerned some programs currently offered through High School Dist. 214 might be lost.

"There are programs being conducted by 214 I feel are being held because of the high school district's size," she said. "What will we have with the unit district and two high schools?"

The proposed unit district would include Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in addition to the Dist. 59 schools. Currently Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214, which has eight high schools.

She said she is concerned about the continuing education program and the career education curriculum.

"I'm not saying we will lose these things. These are just my concerns and I know people in the community who share my concerns."

"THERE IS NO SENSE to change just to change," she said. "The onus is on them (unit district proponents) to prove there will be benefits from the change."

She said she also wants to see "in black and white" the potential financial benefits of a unit district.

Mrs. Vanderweel said after the group members meet to discuss their mutual concerns, she wants to hold a meeting with "those who classify themselves as experts on the unit district" to get answers to their questions.

She said she does not plan to ask unit district opponents to attend the meeting, but would plan to hold a second meeting if questions were raised that needed to be answered by the high school district.

She said if "answers are not available" she hopes the group would form the "nucleus" to act against the unit district movement.

Mrs. Vanderweel plans to hold the organizational meeting of the group at 7:30 p.m. June 24 at Elk Grove High School. She said a date would be set at that time to meet with the unit district proponents.

Police leave 'adult' store alone

By JOE SWICKARD

The topless clerk at the adult bookstore leaned across the counter and stroked his beard.

"We've been here about three months and we haven't had any trouble at all," the clerk said.

Although it was the middle of the afternoon of a working day, the front and rear parking lots of the Rand Road Books, 2239 Rand Rd., Palatine Township, were filled with cars.

INSIDE, CUSTOMERS in business suits and construction clothes browsed among the magazines — $10 now reduced to $6 — or fed quarters into the slots of the individual movie screening booths.

The only heat felt at the store was from the temperature nudging the 90-degree mark. The store has not been raided, materials haven't been seized, nor have clerks been arrested.

The store's sister operation, The King and Queen Adult Book Store in Lake County, had not been so lucky. That store closed last month as part of a plea bargaining deal with Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian. A sign on the closed store now directs customers to Rand Road Books.

The King and Queen shut its doors in exchange for the dropping of obscenity charges against two employees stemming from a raid in which the men were arrested for selling a Lake County Sheriff's deputy an allegedly obscene magazine.

THE CLERK AT THE Rand Road store declined to give his name, but he said during his three years of working at adult bookstores he has not been arrested.

"But if you're in the business long enough, you're bound to get busted sooner or later," he said, adding that most cases drag out only to have the charges later dropped or reduced.

"It's a hassle, but it doesn't really come to much unless you want to get a job where they are going to check for arrest records," the clerk said.

The shop offers such titles as "Real Sex" and others more graphic. The counter displays items advertised as "novelties," "life-like" inflatable woman dolls and things he lumped together as "paraphernalia."

THE SIGN AT THE counter announces a $1 admission charge that is refundable with a purchase.

"We don't want to become a library. We don't want the guys coming to spend their lunch hour browsing and then not buying anything," the clerk said.

The sign also limits admission to persons 21 or older.

"I think the state law says 18, but with all the fake IDs, we don't want to take any chances. That's what they'll really get you for," he said.

THE BUSINESS is changing, he said, even in the three years he has been in it.

"It's different now. People used to come in and turn sideways or they wouldn't even wait for a bag. They'd run right out the door. It's more open now," he said.

The openness has extended to women customers, too, he said.

"We get about a dozen or so a week," the clerk said.

Even with all the possible combinations offered in his wares, the clerk admitted, "After all, you see one, you've seen 'em all."

27th Year—201 Wheeling, Illinois 60090 Monday, June 14, 1976 2 Sections, 24 Pages Single Copy — 15c each

THE WORST INTERSECTION in Wheeling for traffic accidents is Milwaukee and Dundee roads. According to a traffic study prepared by the Northwestern University Traffic Institute, ten of the worst traffic spots in the village are on Dundee Road.

$1 million in losses due to crashes

by LINDA PUNCH
Traffic accidents in Wheeling cost village residents more than $1 million in property loss during 1975, according to a study prepared by the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.
The 144-page report, released Friday, pinpoints the intersection of Milwaukee and Dundee roads as the worst traffic area within the village. Property damage at that intersection totaled an estimated $69,490 last year.
Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher said 10 of the worst traffic spots in the village are along Dundee Road. The area in front of the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., is cited as the location of some of the worst accidents between intersections.
HIGH ACCIDENT locations, in order of severity, are:
• Milwaukee and Dundee roads
• Dundee and Wolf roads
• Dundee and Elmhurst roads
• Dundee and McHenry roads
• Palatine and Wheeling roads
• 250 W. Dundee Rd. (entrance to the village hall)
• Wolf and Hintz roads
• Aptakisic and McHenry roads and Aptakisic and Weiland roads
• Dundee and Schoenbeck roads
• Hintz and Elmhurst roads
• 188 E. Dundee Rd.
• 312 E. Dundee Rd.
• 303 E. Dundee Rd.
• McHenry Road and Cedar Run
• 38 W. Dundee Rd.
Horcher said that while the 15 locations accounted for more than $424,840 of the property loss resulting from traffic accidents, they are "less than 25 per cent of the total accident picture."
The report suggests that village policemen practice "selective enforcement" of traffic violations, Horcher said.
"The study suggests we concentrate on the type of violations contributing to accidents at these locations," he said.
The study group also recommends that the report be submitted to traffic engineers for correction of engineering defects on major village thoroughfares.
The report, based on a five-month study of village traffic patterns, was prepared by a group of police officers enrolled at the traffic institute.

To cover improvement costs

Markus to ask water rate hike

Village employees to picket tonight

Wheeling village employees tonight will continue picketing at the village hall to protest the board's refusal to recognize their union.
Werner Nuspi, a field representative of the Combined Counties Police Assn., Friday said Wheeling employees will again picket for two hours before the 8 p.m. board meeting. He said CCPA representatives also will ask the board to recognize their union as a bargaining agent for village employees.
About 35 employees last Monday took part in "informational picketing" to show their support of a request for union representation. The pickets later attended the board meeting where a CCPA spokesman asked for an outside arbitrator to resolve the dispute over union recognition.
Nuspi said village employees met Thursday but did not make any decisions on action to take in their quest for union recognition.
NUSPI SAID THE CCPA doesn't "see any progress in the near future" in changing the board's feelings toward the CCPA and its affiliate, the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employees.
Trustees last month ended salary negotiations with village employees, saying there is no money available for pay raises in 1976-77. The board also reaffirmed an earlier decision not to recognize the CCPA or its affiliate.
A union official said the union also represents a majority of the village secretaries and clerks.

A recommendation to increase village water rates will be considered tonight by the Wheeling Village Board.

Thomas Markus, acting village manager, Friday said he will propose the increase, but he would not say what amount he will recommend. The meeting is at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

In an earlier report to the board, Markus had suggested a 40 per cent increase to pay for improvements to the village water system. According to the report, an increase in water rates from 50 cents per 1,000 gallons to 70 cents per 1,000 is "badly needed to fund necessary improvements" to the water system.

An engineering consultant earlier this year told village officials they should double or triple water rates to pay for the water system improvements. R. W. Lindley, who has prepared a report on ways to upgrade the system, said village water rates are "very low."

LINDLEY SAID the water department should be able to "support itself. I'm talking about doubling or tripling the water rates. You'll be able to provide a better quality water."

Lindley said neighboring communities charge up to $1.50 per 1,000 gallons. He said the cost of water should "be assessed against the people who are benefiting."

Lindley's report said the village water system is adequate to serve the population. He said the village will have to expand the system, however, to meet the demands of increasing population. He suggested several possibilities for improving the system, including the use of Lake Michigan water.

THE VILLAGE now supplies water from a system of deep and shallow wells. Lindley said the deep wells reportedly are losing water at a rate of 10 feet per year. He said the deep wells are "the most economical and provide the best quality water, but they have a limited life."

The village's shallow well system provides a steady supply of water but has a high iron content, Lindley said. He said water from the wells can be improved by the construction of filtration plants at each of the six shallow-well sites for an estimated cost of $200,000 each.

Village trustees tentatively have selected two projects for the first stage of the $3.5 million water improvement program, including construction of filtration plants and expansion of water mains at Hintz and Schoenbeck roads.

Dist. 96 test presentation tonight

Scores on student achievement tests in Buffalo Grove Dist. 96 will be presented to the board of education tonight.

The administration will present the results of SRA Achievement Tests given to the District's 1,220 students last April. The scores show students are achieving above the expected rate of each of the eight grade levels and are exceeding the national average by several percentage points. Information distributed to parents last week also shows that the district's scores, taken as a whole, have gone up during the past five years.

The tests measure achievement in reading, language arts and math at all grade levels, and measure achievement in social studies, science and research skills from fourth through eighth grade.

BOARD MEMBER Louis Lundstedt also will present results he has compared from scores on entrance tests at Stevenson High School, where the majority of Dist. 96 students attend secondary school. Tests given in 1975 show that while students entering Stevenson from other elementary districts have improved since 1972, the scores of Dist. 96 students who took the test have "in fact dropped," Lundstedt said.

Settlement in Harper talks; teachers to get $1,375 hike

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Although the contract does not specify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:
• Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.
• The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.
• Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than to use the current board-administration team.

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Rosefsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Rosefsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Police leave 'adult' store alone

By JOE SWICKARD

The lopsided clerk at the adult bookstore leaned across the counter and stroked his beard.

"We've been here about three months and we haven't had any trouble at all," the clerk said.

Although it was the middle of the afternoon of a working day, the front and rear parking lots of the Rand Road Books, 2239 Rand Rd., Palatine Township, were filled with cars.

INSIDE, CUSTOMERS in business suits and construction clothes browsed among the magazines — $10 now reduced to $6 — or fed quarters into the slots of the individual movie screening booth.

The only heat felt at the store was from the temperature nudging the 90-degree mark. The store has not been raided, materials haven't been seized.

nor have clerks been arrested.

The store's sister operation, The King and Queen Adult Book Store in Lake County, had not been so lucky. That store closed last month as part of a plea bargaining deal with Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian. A sign on the closed store now directs customers to Rand Road Books.

The King and Queen shut its doors in exchange for the dropping of obscenity charges against two employees stemming from a raid in which the men were arrested for selling a Lake County Sheriff's deputy an allegedly obscene magazine.

THE CLERK AT THE Rand Road store declined to give his name, but he said during his three years of working at adult bookstores he has not been arrested.

"But if you're in the business long enough, you're bound to get busted sooner or later," he said, adding that most cases drag out only to have the charges later dropped or reduced.

"It's a hassle, but it doesn't really come to much unless you want to get a job where they are going to check for arrest records," the clerk said.

The shop offers such titles as "Real Sex" and others more graphic. The counter displays items advertised as "novelties," "life-like" inflatable woman dolls and things he lumped together as "paraphernalia."

THE SIGN AT THE counter announces a $1 admission charge that is refundable with a purchase.

"We don't want to become a library. We don't want the guys coming to spend their lunch hour browsing and then not buying anything," the clerk said.

The sign also limits admission to persons 21 or older.

"I think the state law says 18, but with all the fake ID's, we don't want to take any chances. That's what they'll really get you for," he said.

Most of the customers are men, he said, "carpenters, construction workers, but we also get the businessmen, too."

THE BUSINESS is changing, he said, even in the three years he has been in it.

"It's different now. People used to come in and turn sideways or they wouldn't even wait for a bag. They'd run right out the door. It's more open now," he said.

The openness has extended to women customers, too, he said.

"We get about a dozen or so a week," the clerk said.

Even with all the possible combinations offered in his wares, the clerk admitted, "After all, you see one, you've seen 'em all."

Stevenson scores "raises a question" and the next step is "to try to find out why, what happened."

The board's education committee, of which Lundstedt is a member, has been meeting with parents to solicit their views on the district's educational system as part of an evaluation of the district's programs. The district now uses a program in individually Guided Education operated in an open classroom setting. Some parents who feel some of their children are not achieving under the system have asked for an alternative program.

TONIGHT WHEN the board meets at 8 p.m. at Kildeer School, Rte. 2, Long Grove, the committee is expected to present some preliminary findings of its study and make a recommendation for further research.

Lundstedt said he has the feeling that people are wondering whether only a small group of parents feels there should be an alternative system or whether "there are a substantial number of people who are concerned that there is only one system available to them."

Lundstedt said he would favor mailing a questionnaire to parents to determine the amount of support for an alternative system. and he said he hoped that would be a part of the committee's recommendation.

- Expanded health and life insurance benefits.
- $1,375 in raises for teachers.

BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Cohen ordered the board to negotiate and a series of appeals by the board followed. After losing an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court, representatives of the board and faculty returned to Cohen's courtroom Friday.

Settle salary, contract talks at Harper

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board-Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Although the contract does not specify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:

- Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.
- The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.

- Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than to use the current board-administration team.

- Teachers to drop all lawsuits against the board resulting from the contract dispute, while the board will take no reprisals against the teachers for actions taken during the contract talks.

- Expanded health and life insurance benefits.

- $1,375 in raises for teachers.

BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Cohen ordered the board to negotiate and a series of appeals by the board followed. After losing an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court, representatives of the board and faculty returned to Cohen's courtroom Friday.

FIREFIGHTERS HOSE down the smoldering ruins of a sheet-metal building at the Northwest Building Supply Inc. yard, Weiland and Depot roads, in Paririe View after a fire Saturday gutted the two-story structure. Long Grove firefighters, aided by other Northwest suburban departments, put out the blaze. Dollar loss and cause of the blaze were under investigation Sunday.

$50,000 needed for village to get sewer funding

The Buffalo Grove village board must come up with approximately $50,000 to qualify for a $150,000 federal grant to conduct a sewer inspection program, said Arnold Seaberg, director of community development.

Seaberg said he needs certification tonight from the village board that the village can fund 25 per cent of the inspection program before he can get approval of a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

He said the board also must decide where the money would come from if he is to meet a June 30 application deadline. The board meets at 8 p.m. at village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

The village is applying for the first of a three-step program to inspect, rehabilitate and reconstruct its sewer system.

The estimated inspection cost being submitted by Seaberg is $202,790. He said the EPA can accept all or part of that request. It would then supply the village with 75 per cent of the approved costs.

SEABERG SAID the village also is submitting to the EPA an expense account for past sewer inspections. The agency could agree to pay 75 per cent of those costs, which would be used toward the village's future share of program expenses.

Items included in the application for the first step of the program are $55,000 for manual inspection of the sewers, $11,000 for smoke testing and back-up testing, $40,000 for sewer cleaning, $85,000 for installation and operation of television cameras inside the sewers and $12,000 for formulation of the final inspection report.

Seaberg called the projections "very preliminary estimates."

He said if the EPA approves the village's application for step one, the remaining two steps — rehabilitation and construction — would probably be approved later.

Achievement results above average

Dist. 96 presentation tonight

Scores on student achievement tests in Buffalo Grove Dist. 96 will be presented to the board of education tonight.

The administration will present the results of SRA Achievement Tests given to the District's 1,220 students last April. The scores show students are achieving above the expected rate of each of the eight grade levels and are exceeding the national average by several percentage points. Information distributed to parents last week also shows that the district's scores, taken as a whole, have gone up during the past five years.

The tests measure achievement in reading, language arts and math at all grade levels, and measure achievement in social studies, science and research skills from fourth through eighth grade.

BOARD MEMBER Louis Lundstedt also will present results he has compiled from scores on entrance tests at Stevenson High School, where the majority of Dist. 96 students attend secondary school. Tests given in 1975 show that while students entering Stevenson from other elementary districts have improved since 1972, the scores of Dist. 96 students who took the test have "in fact dropped," Lundstedt said.

Lundstedt said the apparent drop in Stevenson scores "raises a question" and the next step is "to try to find out why, what happened."

The board's education committee, of which Lundstedt is a member, has been meeting with parents to solicit their views on the district's educational system as part of an evaluation of the district's programs. The district now uses a program in Individually Guided Education operated in an open classroom setting. Some parents who feel some of their children are not achieving under the system have asked for an alternative program.

TONIGHT WHEN the board meets at 8 p.m. at Kildeer School, Rte. 2, Long Grove, the committee is expected to present some preliminary findings of its study and make a recommendation for further research.

Lundstedt said he has the feeling that people are wondering whether only a small group of parents feels there should be an alternative system or whether "there are a substantial number of people who are concerned that there is only one system available to them."

Lundstedt said he would favor mailing a questionnaire to parents to determine the amount of support for an alternative system and he said he hoped that would be a part of the committee's recommendation.

Zoning policy change before panel

A proposal to permit the Buffalo Grove Zoning Board of Appeals to make minor changes in zoning restrictions without village board approval will come before the village board tonight.

Under the proposal, the zoning board could give final approval to variations in yard size or in the building of fences that do not conform to village ordinances.

The village board now is required to approve all such requests after the plan commission holds hearings. The board will act on the proposal at its 8 p.m. meeting at village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

William Whited, village administrative assistant, said the trustees usually approve the requests "as a matter of course."

"It just takes up a lot of the board's time and is relatively routine," he said. "This is designed to save the board of trustees some time."

The amendment would permit the zoning board of appeals to authorize variations relating to the "use, instruction, or alteration of buildings or the use of land in cases where there are practical difficulties or particular hardship in the way of carrying out the strict letter of these regulations."

VARIATIONS WOULD be limited to:

- Yards no more than 33 per cent smaller than required by the ordinance.

- Lots no more than 10 per cent smaller in area than required by the ordinance.

- Lots no more than 15 per cent smaller in width than required by the ordinance.

- Fences no more than six feet high.

Major zoning changes that would authorize construction or expansion of a business or industry still would have to be approved by the trustees.

Beth Judea starts campaign June 27

Congregation Beth Judea of Buffalo Grove will launch its 1976 campaign on behalf of the Jewish United Fund-Israel Emergency Fund at a 9:30 a.m. breakfast June 27 at the congregation, Ill. Rte. 83 and Hilltop Road, Buffalo Grove.

Israel Amitai, an Israeli journalist, analyst, playwright and director, will address the group. Admission is free.

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers

affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Rosefsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Rosefsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Veterinary hospital before village

A rezoning request to permit construction of a veterinary hospital at Buffalo Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 83 will be reviewed by the Buffalo Grove Village Board tonight.

Dr. Ronald Price, Mundelein, is planning to remodel an abandoned service station on the half-acre site. The plan commission recommended

June 2 that the parcel be rezoned from business to special use. The board will act on the request at its 8 p.m. meeting at village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

William Whited, village administrative assistant, said the plan commission decided on a special-use permit because there is no village zoning ordinance to allow for construction of a veterinary hospital.

Under a special-use permit the area will remain zoned for businesses, except for the parcel to be used by Price. Should Price leave, it automatically would return to original zoning restrictions.

Price told the commission he will treat mostly small animals and no dogs will be boarded.

The proposed special-use permit would restrict animals from being kept outside or boarded, would prohibit incineration and treatment of horses, cows, pigs, goats and sheep.

Buffalo Grove now has one veterinary hospital, the Saidel Animal Hospital, 1031 W. Dundee Rd.

THE ONLY OTHER alternative, he said, was to zone the area for manufacturing. This would be "undesirable," he said, because it would allow for larger firms to come into the area.

Appraisal starts this week for forest preserve

Appraisal of a future 142-acre forest preserve west of Buffalo Grove will start this week.

Problems in locating titles to the land have delayed the appraisal work for several months, according to appraiser William Schwandt of Libertyville.

The land is located west of Arlington Heights Road, north of the Lake-Cook county line, south of Checker Road and east of Schaffer Road.

The Lake County Forest Preserve District and the Metropolitan Sanitary District have signed an agreement to purchase the land for joint use. However, they cannot proceed with the purchase or design specifications until the land is appraised, according to Jervold Soesbe, forest preserve district director.

"I predicted over a year ago that the appraisals would be completed within six months," Soesbe said.

Schwandt cited "miscommunications" with the title company for the delay. "Things just don't run smoothly for an appraiser," he said.

Under the purchase agreement, the MSD will reimburse the forest preserve district for the purchase of the land and will complete the engineering work. The preserve district will hold title to the land and maintain it.

Tentative plans call for a retention area and picnic site on the land.

Settle pay pact talks at Harper

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Although the contract does not specify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:

- Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.

- The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.

- Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than use the current board-administration team.

- Teachers to drop all lawsuits against the board resulting from the contract dispute, while the board will take no reprisals against the teachers for actions taken during the contract talks.

- Expanded health and life insurance benefits.
- $1,375 in raises for teachers.

BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Cohen ordered the board to negotiate and a series of appeals by the board followed. After losing an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court, representatives of the board and faculty returned to Cohen's courtroom Friday.

Mental center grant request hearing today

Officials from the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center today will present their request for a share of $631,000 federal grant money before a 21-member citizens' advisory committee.

The mental health center is seeking $264,000 of the federal money plus $99,000 in an allied state grant program to fund 55 per cent of the $660,000 cost of a new permanent facility at Nerge and Kohlwing roads, Elk Grove Village.

Four other mental health centers are seeking part of the available federal money.

The citizens' advisory committee, headed by Prof. Hiram Sibley of the University of Illinois School of Public Health, will give each of the five applicants a half-hour hearing today in Chicago. The committee is to make its recommendation to the Illinois Department of Mental Health Tuesday on who should get the federal money.

OTHER MEMBERS of the committee include Mary Lee Leahy, state director of children and family services; Joseph Cronin, superintendent of the Illinois Dept. of Education; James L. Trainor, state director of public aid; and Dr. Joyce Lashoff, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

Representing the mental health center at the hearing will be executive director Jordan Rosen, board president George T. Spees, board member Paul Rettberg, coordinator of development Anne Fraser and possibly Brother Felix Bettendorf of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Rosen said State Representative Eugene S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Virginia B. Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, also will attend.

According to the state priority ranking for grant money, the mental health center ranks last of the five applicants. However, the award is not necessarily based solely on the rankings, according to Douglas Spencer, manager of the mental health department's community services division.

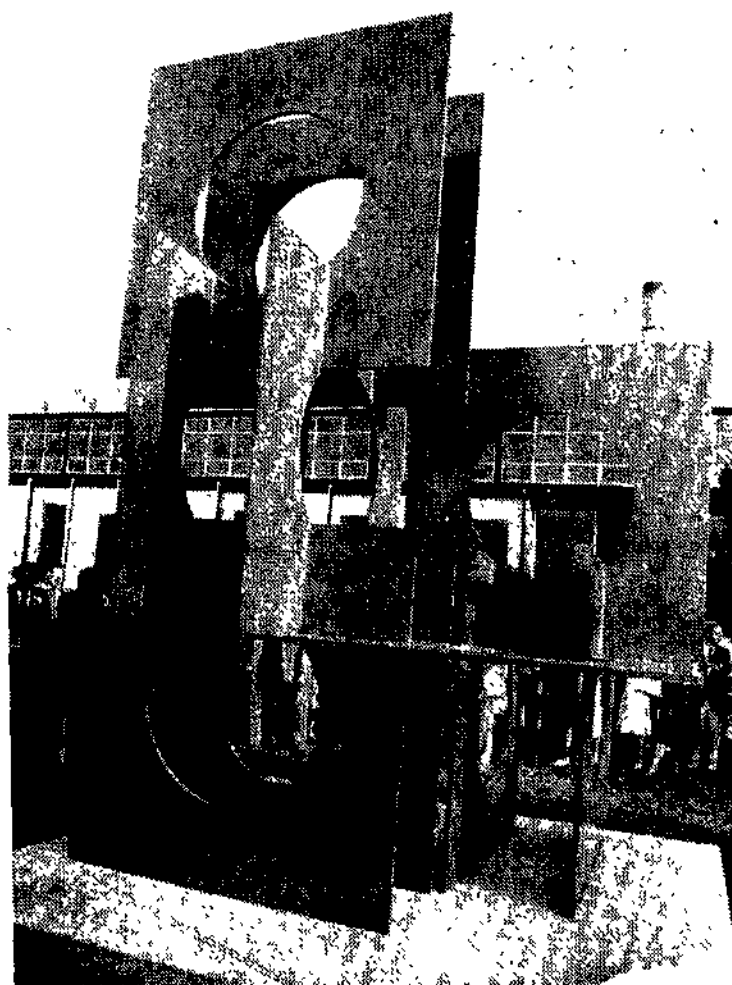

Once the committee makes its recommendation, the department of mental health makes the final recommendation to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

At last... a $10,000 study in steel is unveiled.

Art for the masses via another lawn sculpture

It wasn't another Picasso, but it was an industrial contribution to artistic expression in the Northwest suburbs.

Interstate Steel Co., a steel distribution and warehouse firm at 401 Touhy Ave. in Des Plaines, unveiled a front-lawn sculpture late Friday that has an estimated value of $10,000.

The sculpture, designed by Albert Cout, was a tribute to the company's "day-to-day working with coiled and plated steel," the artist said.

The fire engine red abstract sculpture, which stands five feet and weighs 8 tons, is an intermingling of circles and squares that took a year to design and build.

Cout, a Skokie graphics designer, said the sculpture was his first and he hopes it will "help set a continuing trend of art in the suburbs."

THE SCULPTURE, which has no official title but is called "Sculpture One" by the artist, is the second major art work to be dedicated in a Northwest suburban industrial area during the past two years.

The first was, "The Bather," designed by the late Pablo Picasso and constructed last year at the Gould Center, on Golf Road near the Northwest Tollway in Rolling Meadows.

About 300 employees and customers of Interstate Steel attended the unveiling ceremonies, which were highlighted by circus-like tents, a strolling Mexican band, hot hors d'oeuvres, and glasses of champagne on the company's front lawn.

The sculpture, made of one-inch steel plate, was constructed at the Touhy Avenue warehouse.

Police leave 'adult' store alone

By JOE SWICKARD

The topless clerk at the adult bookstore leaned across the counter and stroked his beard.

"We've been here about three months and we haven't had any trouble at all," the clerk said.

Although it was the middle of the afternoon of a working day, the front and rear parking lots of the Rand Road Books, 2239 Rand Rd., Palatine Township, were filled with cars.

INSIDE, CUSTOMERS in business suits and construction clothes browsed among the magazines — $10 now reduced to $6 — or fed quarters into the slots of the individual movie screening booths.

The only heat felt at the store was from the temperature nudging the 90-degree mark. The store has not been raided, materials haven't been seized, nor have clerks been arrested.

The store's sister operation, The King and Queen Adult Book Store in Lake County, had not been so lucky. That store closed last month as part of a plea bargaining deal with Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian. A sign on the closed store now directs customers to Rand Road Books.

The King and Queen shut its doors in exchange for the dropping of obscenity charges against two employees stemming from a raid in which the men were arrested for selling a Lake County Sheriff's deputy an allegedly obscene magazine.

THE CLERK AT THE Rand Road store declined to give his name, but he said during his three years of working at adult bookstores he has not been arrested.

"But if you're in the business long enough, you're bound to get busted sooner or later," he said, adding that most cases drag out only to have the charges later dropped or reduced.

"It's a hassle, but it doesn't really come to much unless you want to get a job where they are going to check for arrest records," the clerk said.

The shop offers such titles as "Real Sex" and others more graphic. The counter displays items advertised as "novelties," "life-like" inflatable woman dolls and things he lumped together as "paraphernalia."

THE SIGN AT THE counter announces a $1 admission charge that is refundable with a purchase.

"We don't want to become a library. We don't want the guys coming to spend their lunch hour browsing and then not buying anything," the clerk said.

The sign also limits admission to persons 21 or older.

"I think the state law says 18, but with all the fake ID's, we don't want to take any chances. That's what they'll really get you for," he said.

Most of the customers are men, he said, "carpenters, construction work-

THE BUSINESS is changing, he said, even in the three years he has been in it.

"It's different now. People used to come in and turn sideways or they wouldn't even wait for a bag. They'd run right out the door. It's more open now," he said.

The openness has extended to women customers, too, he said.

"We get about a dozen or so a week," the clerk said.

Even with all the possible combinations offered in his wares, the clerk admitted, "After all, you see one, you've seen 'em all."

B'nai B'rith named tops in Northern Ill.

The Elk Grove Village Lodge of B'nai B'rith has been named the best lodge in the Northern Illinois Conference and recipient of the Joseph Lewis Memorial Trophy.

In addition to traditional B'nai B'rith involvements, the lodge provided three special community services:

- J. F. Kennedy Citizenship Awards were given to the outstanding boy and girl graduates of the three junior high schools. Each winner received a gold-embossed copy of the American Heritage dictionary.

- Members rode with police patrolmen on Christmas Eve to provide company and conversation while the policemen were apart from their families on the holiday. The lodge also provided Kasher food trays for all policemen on duty that night.

- The lodge designed and built Freedom Stands at local shopping centers as part of the village's Bicentennial observance. The stands are staffed each weekend so that villagers can sign a copy of the Declaration of Independence with an Elk Grove Village addendum attached. When completed the scroll will be presented to the village for permanent display.

Food canning clinic June 23 at library

The Elk Grove Park District will sponsor a canning and freezing food preservation clinic at 10 a.m. June 23 at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, 101 Kennedy Blvd.

The 90-minute mini-course is open to all adult park district residents. There will be a $3 fee, which includes the cost of guideline booklets and a packet of helpful materials. The fee must be paid in advance at the park office, 499 Biesterfeld Rd.

A representative of the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service will give a demonstration during the session.

MOVING DAY for the Schaumburg Police Dept. was Saturday as village public works employees moved police equipment and supplies from The Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr., to the new $2.5 million police and courts building at 1000 W. Schaumburg Rd.

On W. Schaumburg Road

Police in new $2 million building

by PAT GERLACH

The Schaumburg Police Dept. opened for business this morning in the new $2.5 million police and courts building, 1000 W. Schaumburg Rd.

The move from the village's old Civic Center complex was completed Saturday. Police administration and records departments had been housed in an old frame residence, and communications and processing divisions occupied Schaumburg's historic Great Hall.

The new building, hailed by many as one of the most modern police stations in the Midwest, was designed by architects Loeb, Schlossman, Dart and Hackl under the supervision of Police Chief Martin J. Conroy.

882-3141 new police number

Effective at 8 a.m. today, Schaumburg's new police emergency telephone number is 882-3141.

Because the communications center for both the village police and fire departments will be in the new police and courts building, 1000 W. Schaumburg Rd., the fire department emergency number is being changed to 882-3121.

Village officials said the fire department will not move to the new police and courts building. Only the fire department telephone number will be affected by the change.

The East Coast-based builder pioneered Schaumburg's Weathersfield subdivision when the building boom began in the village in the late 1950s.

The building includes a courtroom designed to seat approximately 200 persons. It also contains separate chambers for clerk, judge, state's attorney, defense attorney and detention cells.

A lower level contains a fully equipped five-man pistol range, squad room and identification areas.

Parking for 124 cars is provided at the front of the building with additional parking for 51 police vehicles at the rear.

Formal dedication ceremonies for the building will be in September.

Settle salary, contract talks at Harper

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Although the contract does not specify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:

- Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.

- The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.

- Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than use the current board-administration team.

- Teachers to drop all lawsuits against the board resulting from the contract dispute, while the board will take no reprisals against the teachers for actions taken during the contract talks.

- Expanded health and life insurance benefits.

- $1,375 in raises for teachers.

BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Cohen ordered the board to negotiate and a series of appeals by the board followed. After losing an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court, representatives of the board and faculty returned to Cohen's courtroom Friday.

Mental center grant request hearing today

Officials from the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center today will present their request for a share of $631,000 federal grant money before a 21-member citizens' advisory committee.

The mental health center is seeking $264,000 of the federal money plus $99,000 in an allied state grant program to fund 55 per cent of the $660,000 cost of a new permanent facility at Nerge and Rohlwing roads, Elk Grove Village.

Four other mental health centers are seeking part of the available federal money.

The citizens' advisory committee, headed by Prof. Hiram Sibley of the University of Illinois School of Public Health, will give each of the five applicants a half-hour hearing today in Chicago. The committee is to make its recommendation to the Illinois Department of Mental Health Tuesday on who should get the federal money.

OTHER MEMBERS of the committee include Mary Lee Leahy, state director of children and family services; Joseph Cronin, superintendent of the Illinois Dept. of Education; James L. Tramor, state director of public aid; and Dr. Joyce Lashoff, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health.

Representing the mental health center at the hearing will be executive director Jordan Rosen, board president George T. Spees, board member Paul Rettberg, coordinator of development Anne Fraser and possibly Brother Felix Bettendorf of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Rosen said State Representatives Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Virginia B. Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, also will attend.

According to the state priority ranking for grant money, the mental health center ranks last of the five applicants. However, the award is not necessarily based solely on the rankings, according to Douglas Spencer, manager of the mental health department's community services division.

Once the committee makes its recommendation, the department of mental health makes the final recommendation to the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

3 charged in theft of 8 bags of groceries from cart

Three Rolling Meadows residents sat in the Schaumburg lockup Sunday, facing charges of theft and conspiracy for allegedly stealing eight bags of groceries valued at $66.

Police said Gary L. Pionke, 19, of 4603 Magnolia Ln., was charged with petty theft; and companions, Robert H. Christiansen, 17, and his sister, Debra J., 18, of 2409 George St., were charged with conspiracy to commit theft.

A 15-year-old Mount Prospect boy also taken into custody was released to his parents, police said.

Nora M. Magee, of 719 White Willow Bay, Palatine, reportedly had left a cartload of groceries at the customer pickup area outside the Dominick's Fine Foods store, 20 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, at 3:30 p.m. Saturday and had gone for her car.

Meanwhile, the four allegedly pulled up in their car, grabbed the groceries and drove off.

A Rolling Meadows patrol chased down the car on Ill. Rte. 58, police said. Pionke, the driver, allegedly jumped out of the car and ran. He was later apprehended at a friend's home, police said.

Bond for the three adults was set at $1,000, and the Christiansens were ordered to appear July 14 in the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers

affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Rosefsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Rosefsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Bicentennial dinner dance

A Bicentennial benefit dinner dance will be sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Bicentennial Commission July 3 from 7:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the Moon Lake Village Recreation Hall, 1815 Jennifer Ln.

Tickets for the steak dinner, limited to 250, will be $6 and are available at the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr. or from commission members.

All profits from the dance will go to the Poplar Creek Historical Society restoration project to remodel the Sunderlage farm site in the Moon Lake complex into a museum.

Dog show planned

The Schaumburg Park District will sponsor a children's dog show Friday as part of a summer program of special events.

The show will begin at 10 a.m. at Civic Park, Sharon Lane.

Children 8 to 12 years old are eligible to enter their dogs in the competition.

The animals will be judged in seven categories: best trick dog, smallest dog, largest dog, best looking dog, best costumed, funniest dog, and best behaved dog.

Registration is being taken through Friday at Jennings House Youth Center, 220 S. Civic Dr. There is no entry fee.

Sailing regatta Saturday

A sailing regatta will be sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Park District Saturday at Highpoint Park on Ash Road between Higgins and Golf roads.

A skippers' meeting will be at 10 a.m. with the first heat scheduled for 11 a.m.

Deadline for registration is Wednesday at the district office, 650 W. Hig-

Dist. 15 leaders to receive 6% salary increase

Top administrators in Palatine Township Dist. 15 will receive pay increases averaging 6.1 per cent for the 1976-77 school year.

The board of education approved these and other salary increases Wednesday. The raises approved are about 2 per cent less than those granted last year.

Supt. Frank Whiteley's salary was raised 5 per cent from $38,500 to $40,425. Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka's salary was increased from $33,250 to $34,912.

THE SALARIES OF two assistant superintendents, William Colburn and Marion Omiatek, were raised from $32,000 to $33,600. Lorita Langley, assistant superintendent for special services and community information, received a pay increase from $27,000 to $28,820.

Robert Anderson, administrative assistant for personnel and planning, was granted a 10 per cent salary increase from $25,000 to $27,500.

Principals were granted an average raise of 5.9 per cent, with exception of two first-year principals who received a 17.3 per cent raise.

Principals' salaries will range from $20,493 to $29,741. Last year, they earned between $17,470 and $28,023. The principals' salaries are based on several factors including their administrative experience, enrollment of their schools and the superintendent's evaluations.

gins Rd. Fee is $2. The regatta is open to all boats 15 feet and less in length with classifications set on the basis of the sail's square footage.

Jaycees honor Kozak

Schaumburg Jaycees have named Frank Kozak, who has just completed a term as chapter president, Key Man of the Year for outstanding service during 1975-76.

Presidential awards for outstanding achievement were presented by Kozak to John Mazzola for work on the chapter newsletter, Alan Larson for publicity, and Larry Roth, orientation chairman and state Jaycees director who was responsible for more than 70 chapter visitations last year.

The Jaycees selected the poison control center recently donated to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, as their project of the year.

Ethics code up for fifth try today

The controversial ethics code proposed for Hoffman Estates public officials will for the fifth time come before the village judiciary committee at 7:30 p.m. today in the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

The proposed ordinance, brought up earlier this year by Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, has been on the committee docket since February.

Trustee Melvin Timmons, judiciary committee chairman, said the committee members will decide what is to be done with the proposed ordinance, modeled after a similar code in Palatine.

Trustee William Cowin, a self-employed real estate broker, has criticized the proposed code, repeatedly labeling it "impossible to live with" and "discriminatory."

THE CODE INCLUDES restrictions that require brokers on village boards or commissions to sign statements that they will not accept income from property sales pending before the village for zoning or other action. It also requires that brokers not accept income for a one-year period following any village action on the property.

Timmons, who received his real estate broker's license last month, has affirmed he will consider supporting the ethics code even though it severely restricts him in his new profession. Timmons has said he currently is "learning the ropes" at Cowin's business, Citadel Realtors, 2308 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

ALSO ON TONIGHT'S agenda is a marijuana possession ordinance proposed to bring the crime under local control; consideration of a Palatine land dedication ordinance used to obtain public land from developers and an ordinance proposing new swimming pool regulations.

The pool regulations clarify specific rules on the operation and set-up of village public and private pools, Health Director James Demos said.

The proposed regulations, which include official recognition of state laws for pools, was submitted by the board of health.

Also on the agenda is discussion of licensing electronic coin-operated games in the village.

Jaycee carnival opens Thursday

Schaumburg Jaycees will present their annual carnival Thursday through Sunday at Town Square Shopping Center, Roselle and Schaumburg roads.

The event will open at 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday and noon Saturday and Sunday.

Activities will include games, amusements, rides and a number of special events.

The lady who rings the bell the most times Friday night by swinging a heavy mallet will win a $25 U.S. Savings Bond.

Sunday night, the school-age boy and girl with the most authentic Bicentennial costumes will each receive $25 bonds.

In Sunday's Bicentennial baby contest, judges will select two pictures of infants born in 1976 for prizes.

Also Sunday, the man with the longest moustache will win a special prize.

Proceeds from the Jaycees carnival are used for community projects.

In recent years, carnival proceeds have been used to provide Schaumburg with the 10-acre Jaycees fully equipped playground and park and a fully equipped paramedic vehicle estimated at about $37,000.

The Jaycees also recently have donated a poison control center to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Voters want strong city manager

Government revamp OKd; cut in aldermen rejected

by TONI GINETTI

Rolling Meadows voters have approved restructuring of the city's administration, at the same time electing to retain the current system of ward representation in the city council.

Voters turned out in surprisingly large numbers Saturday to approve by a near 3-to-2 margin adopting a strong city manager form of government that will place day-to-day administration of the city in the hands of a strong city manager whose duties are determined by state law.

Also winning heavy voter support was a measure to continue the system in which residents are represented in the city council by two aldermen per ward.

Nearly 2,000 persons cast ballots in the referendum, which culminated in a confrontation between aldermen and Mayor Roland J. Meyer.

By nearly identical totals, voters approved the first two questions on the ballot, and they resoundingly defeated the third ballot question, proposed by Meyer, which would have reduced the number of aldermen from two to one per ward.

TOTALS FROM the city's five wards showed 1,135 votes, representing 82 per cent of the total, were cast in support of the strong manager system, and 678 were against. A total of 1,139 "Yes" votes, about 63 per cent of the total, were cast for the continuation of the ward system of council representation compared to 644 "no" votes.

Only 363 votes were cast in support of reducing the council's size, compared to 1,388 against the measure, a 20-80 per cent split.

The closest vote on the managerial question came in the city's oldest wards, the second and third, although in both areas, as in the city's remaining three districts, the second question carried by healthy margins and the third question was defeated overwhelmingly.

Here are Saturday's Rolling Meadows managerial referendum vote totals by ward:

In the 2nd Ward, the first question was approved by a 79-vote margin in a 289-210 split. But in the 3rd Ward, only 19 votes carried the first question, with 222 "yes" votes cast to 203 "no" votes.

THE VOTER TURNOUT of 1,812, about 24 per cent of the city's 8,500 registered voters, was higher than most city officials had predicted and surprised many.

Meyer said the total represented a good turnout for the referendum, which had been characterized by confusion during nearly eight months of debate among aldermen and Meyer.

"I do think we got a higher turnout now than we would have had in April," Meyer said. He referred to the fact that the election originally had been scheduled April 3 by the council, but the date was invalidated and rescheduled by the Cook County Circuit Court after Meyer filed petitions to amend the referendum.

Ald. Thomas Waldron, 2nd, said he was pleased with the good turnout and said even in tightly contested city elections in the past "we did not bring out as many voters as we did for this referendum. A referendum vote is usually very light."

About 3,500 persons voted in last year's mayoral-aldermanic elections.

ELECTION JUDGES at several polls said many "old-timers" were voting, "people who have lived in the city 15 years or more and like things the way they are."

Ald. John Rock, 3rd, said the turnout "shows voters are interested in the type of government they want."

Ald. Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, said he was "very pleased with the turnout. It was higher than I expected."

Saturday's vote marked the climax of a long-running debate between Meyer and the city council which grew increasingly bitter as the referendum approached.

Vote a 'victory' but change lags, 5 aldermen say

by JERRY THOMAS

Five city aldermen Saturday termed the referendum results a "victory" over Mayor Roland J. Meyer, although they and Meyer said city government will not change drastically because of the vote.

The five, Aldermen Raymond Neuckranz, 1st, Thomas J. Waldron, 2nd, James Huddleston, 4th, and Kenneth Retzke and Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, said the results signaled a triumph for aldermen who had sought to reduce Meyer's authority.

Despite their claims of victory, however, Meyer said, "I don't see any real change until after the 1977 election."

MEYER AND aldermen said Saturday they have learned from City Atty. Donald Rose that the appointment of a city manager will rest with the city council. However, Meyer will continue to hold veto power over the council in all matters including the choice of a manager.

A two-thirds vote of the city council is required to override mayoral vetoes.

Meyer said it is too early to determine if he will run again in 1979.

"It's a good turnout and you can't argue with it," he said of the referendum results.

Aldermen agreed for the most part with Meyer's assessment that the referendum will not change city government substantially.

Neuckranz said a survey he conducted in January showed the only change residents wanted was a strong city manager.

ELECTION RESULTS paralleled the results of a survey conducted by the five aldermen earlier this year.

"I knew it all along," Neuckranz said as vote results were totaled.

"Our survey was accurate, in fact almost exactly like the referendum totals," Jacobson said.

"The mayor was foolish to think he could get rid of half the council. We have proven the residents think we are doing a good job."

"We were also right when we told the mayor the residents want a strong city manager," Jacobson said.

Jacobson also said the vote repudiated a circular distributed Thursday by a citizens' group headed by Rudolf Balek, the city welfare officer.

The circular accused some councilmen of "a grab for power" and of holding "secret meetings."

"IT COULDN'T have helped us more," Waldron said of the circular. "I think the Balek literature hurt them. It was pretty awful and it made people go out and vote."

"The voters did not think our attempt to bring in a strong city manager was a power play and obviously did not agree with the literature," Waldron said.

"I'm highly elated over the results," he added.

Huddleston said, "There was a lot of talk that this was some kind of power grab. Actually, it was just aldermen trying to return the government back to the people."

Retzke said the next few years will

New search to begin soon

The search for a city manager will begin as soon as Saturday's referendum results become part of the city's ordinances, but the selection process could take months to complete.

Several aldermen Saturday said they will ask that a special city council committee begin a new search for a city manager.

A managerial search has been conducted earlier this year to replace James Watson, who resigned in October, but Mayor Roland J. Meyer declined to appoint a replacement until the referendum was decided.

Charles Green, administrative assistant, has been serving as acting city manager.

Selection of the manager now will rest with the city council, according to City Atty. Donald Rose. However, Meyer, who has appointment powers, said he will continue to hold a veto power in the selection process.

THE NEW FORM of government will give the city manager power to appoint department heads, although current department heads appointed by Meyer will remain through 1979, when the mayor's term expires.

The city council will remain at 10 members, with Meyer presiding over council meetings and continuing to hold veto and tie-breaking vote powers.

Ald. Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, said Saturday, however, that it could take a month before the legalities of incorporating the new government system into city ordinances are completed.

Ald. Raymond Neuckranz, 1st, predicted it could take three to four months before a manager is hired.

THE CITY'S EARLIER manager search narrowed some 60 applicants to four candidates. However, Ald. Kenneth Retzke, 5th, a member of the manager selection committee, said Saturday the four final candidates probably have found other jobs.

One alderman, John Rock, 3rd, said the council should not rule out Green, the acting manager for the permanent post.

Meyer said he doubts whether the council will be able to find a prospective manager soon.

"Any candidate worth his salt won't take the job, knowing that the power structure of the council is going to undergo a change in April of 1977 when five aldermen are up for reelection."

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers

affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Roselsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Roselsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Porno bookstore feels no heat to retreat

By JOE SWICKARD
The topless clerk at the adult bookstore leaned across the counter and stroked his beard.

"We've been here about three months and we haven't had any trouble at all," the clerk said. Although it was the middle of the afternoon of a working day, the front and rear parking lots of the Rand Road Books, 2239 Rand Rd., Palatine Township, were filled with cars.

INSIDE, CUSTOMERS in business suits and construction clothes browsed among the magazines — $10 now reduced to $6 — or fed quarters into the slots of the individual movie screening booths.

The only heat felt at the store was from the temperature nudging the 90-degree mark. The store has not been raided, materials haven't been seized, nor have clerks been arrested.

The store's sister operation, The King and Queen Adult Book Store in Lake County, had not been so lucky. That store closed last month as part of a plea bargaining deal with Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian. A sign on the closed store now directs customers to Rand Road Books.

The King and Queen shut its doors in exchange for the dropping of obscenity charges against two employees stemming from a raid in which the men were arrested for selling a Lake County Sheriff's deputy an allegedly obscene magazine.

THE CLERK AT THE Rand Road store declined to give his name, but he said during his three years of working at adult bookstores he has not been arrested.

"But if you're in the business long enough, you're bound to get busted sooner or later," he said, adding that most cases drag out only to have the charges later dropped or reduced.

"It's a hassle, but it doesn't really come to much unless you want to get a job where they are going to check for arrest records," the clerk said.

The shop offers such titles as "Real Sex" and others more graphic. The counter displays items advertised as "novelties," "life-like" inflatable woman dolls and things he lumped together as "paraphernalia."

THE SIGN AT THE counter announces a $1 admission charge that is refundable with a purchase.

"We don't want to become a library. We don't want the guys coming to spend their lunch hour browsing and then not buying anything," the clerk said.

The sign also limits admission to persons 21 or older.

"I think the state law says 18, but with all the fake ID's, we don't want to take any chances. That's what they'll really get you for," he said.

THE BUSINESS is changing, he said, even in the three years he has been in it.

"It's different now. People used to come in and turn sideways or they wouldn't even wait for a bag. They'd run right out the door. It's more open now," he said.

The openness has extended to women customers, too, he said.

"We get about a dozen or so a week," the clerk said.

Even with all the possible combinations offered in his wares, the clerk admitted, "After all, you see one, you've seen 'em all."

endum neared.

Aldermen called for the referendum last fall following the resignation of City Mgr. James Watson. They said a strong managerial form of government would place more firm administrative powers with the city manager by giving him appointment powers that now rest with the mayor.

MEYER IN TURN charged that the aldermen were attempting to strengthen their own control over city affairs and making the referendum issue "political."

The debate provoked heated comments from all sides and reached its most volatile level two days before Saturday's vote, when an antireferendum circular prepared by a citizens' committee headed by city welfare officer Rudolf Balek charged the aldermen were making a "grab for power."

Aldermen condemned the circular and charged that it had Meyer's backing. Balek said he never consulted with Meyer, and Meyer denied knowledge of the circular, although he said he agreed with statements it contained.

Vote a 'victory' but change lags, 5 aldermen say

be a learning experience. "We will be operating under a new set of rules," he added.

Retzke said changes in the makeup of the city council could come in 1980 if the city's population increases to more than 20,000. At that time the city would increase from five to seven wards, according to state law.

"THE RESIDENTS told us today that they want two aldermen representation in each ward. But, perhaps when there are seven wards the council might want to consider another referendum to decide if there should be only one alderman from each ward," he added.

Ald. John Rock, 3rd, said "The election proved only one thing — residents want good ward representation."

He termed voter approval of the manager type of government "meaningless."

"We will still have the same thing, only now the city manager will have 10 bosses instead of one. I don't see any drastic changes," he added.

Aldermen Merrill Wuersch, 1st, William Ahrens, 2nd, Stephen Eberhard, 3rd, and Daniel Weber, 4th, were unavailable for comment.

Faculty, Harper reach accord in salary talks

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Although the contract does not specify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:

- Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.

- The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.

- Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than to use the current board-administration team.

- Teachers to drop all lawsuits against the board resulting from the contract dispute, while the board will take no reprisals against the teachers for actions taken during the contract talks.

- Expanded health and life insurance benefits.

- $1,375 in raises for teachers.

LOOKING ALMOST exactly as it did two months ago when a water heater explosion ripped apart two apartments, the building at the Cedar Garden Apartment complex awaits repairs. Palatine officials say they will wait another 30 days before taking action to require that the damaged structure be repaired. Management officials say the building will be fixed.

At scene of explosion April 19

Action stalls on apartment repair

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said the village is planning no immediate action to speed up repair of a building at the Cedar Garden Apartments, damaged in April by a water heater explosion.

Harwig said he has not spoken to management personnel at the complex, 430 W. Palatine Rd. However, he said if nothing is done at the area within 30 days, the village will push for repair work to get under way.

The village manager said insurance paperwork probably is holding up work on the site, the reason the village has done nothing to hasten work.

"WE TRY TO BE reasonable in a situation like this," Harwig said. "We know that insurance in these cases takes awhile, but I would imagine that if something isn't done in about 30 days or so, we might start to make some inquiries of the people there."

Harwig said the village is concerned in such situations about children playing in the area who might get hurt. He said in such instances, police must keep an extra watch to be sure children and vandals are not at the site.

Management personnel at the complex were reluctant Friday to talk about plans for the two apartments that were destroyed.

"Everything's being taken care of," a spokesman said. "I don't know exactly what will happen, but the families have been taken care of."

The April 19 blast caused an estimated $75,000 damage to the 16-unit, two-story building and left several residents homeless. No one was killed in the explosion, but the roof and outer walls of the northeast section of the building were destroyed by the force of the blast.

Settle salary, contract talks at Harper

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Although the contract does not specify that the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

THE 12-PARAGRAPH agreement calls for:

- Good faith negotiations with both sides meeting twice a week if necessary.

- The faculty senate to submit a proposal by Jan. 15, 1977, and negotiations to begin Feb. 7, concluding by midnight April 7.

- Both sides to designate their own representatives for negotiations. The clause would leave the door open for the faculty to use an AFT negotiator and for the board to hire a professional negotiator rather than to use the current board-administration team.

- Teachers to drop all lawsuits against the board resulting from the contract dispute, while the board will take no reprisals against the teachers for actions taken during the contract talks.

- Expanded health and life insurance benefits.

- $1,375 in raises for teachers.

BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Dominick's robbed of cash, tickets

A gunman drove away with $2,327 cash and lottery tickets valued at $650 from a Palatine supermarket Sunday afternoon, after firing at a store employee who tried to stop his escape.

Police said a man, 25 to 30 years old and brandishing a revolver, took bags of cash and 50-cent and $1 lottery tickets from the Dominick's Finer Foods store, 223 E. Northwest Hwy.

Police said the gunman entered the store shortly before 2:30 p.m. Sunday and followed a female employee behind the cashier's counter. Police said the gunman took out his revolver and told the employee to open the store safe.

When the employee told him the safe was on a time lock and could not be opened, the robber took the lottery tickets and cash from a cashier's box, opened, the robber took the lottery tickets and cash from a cashier's box, and ran out of the store, police said.

Police said an employee ran after the gunman, who stopped in the parking lot and pulled a gun. After warning the employee to back off, the robber fired but missed.

Police said the gunman ran, and witnesses reported seeing the man get into a car parked outside St. Theresa's Catholic Church, 487 N. Benton St.

The Bridge offers course for parents

Four sessions to train parents in communicating with their children will be offered by The Bridge Thursday nights beginning July 22.

The sessions will run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and will be conducted by Bridge staff member Jane Brown.

Interested parents should phone The Bridge by July 19 to register at 359-7490. Cost is $10 a parent or $15 a couple.

$71,300 sought at meeting tonight

Service group fund quest still on

Representatives from five social service agencies will return to the Palatine Township Board of Auditors at 8 p.m. today for their second appearance in requesting $71,300 for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Representatives from Countryside Center for the Handicapped and Clearbrook Center, both of Rolling Meadows; Shelter Inc., of Hoffman Estates; Northwest Mental Health Assn., Arlington Heights; and the Palatine Township Senior Citizens Council will attend tonight's meeting at township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

The agencies submitted funding requests earlier this year, but the township auditors maintain a policy of not granting any funding at the first appearance of an organization's representative.

Funding for the social service agencies will come from the township's revenue-sharing monies, projected to be $235,000 during fiscal 1976-77.

THE LARGEST funding request of $22,550 comes from Countryside for the Handicapped, an increase of $15,000 from its request last year.

Countryside director Ralph Walberg said the increase was prompted by the center's opening Meadows, a live-in facility for 94 persons in Palatine. Fifteen of those residents receive services at Countryside, he said, and because those persons live in Palatine their help should be partially funded by the township.

Clearbrook Center's request for $21,000, $1,000 less than last year, was prompted by the center placing more of its clients in jobs than had been anticipated.

The request for next year is based on serving 35 persons; last year's request was based on 40 persons.

The request for $21,500 from Northwest Mental Health Assn. is up $3,000 from last year. The association is serving more Palatine Township residents more frequently than last year, executive director Jerry Medow said, which accounts for the increased funding request.

SHELTER, INC., has requested $6,284 from the township. A request of $15,000 from Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Rolling Meadows, will be discussed at the auditors meeting June 28.

The township board already has approved $15,000 for the Palatine Township Senior Citizens Council, but council director Louise Robertson will report to the board progress of a study of a bus route for the seniors' 20-seat bus.

The bus now operates on a first-come, first-served basis and covers 36 square miles of the township. Auditor Charles Zimmerman has suggested a route for the bus might be more efficient.

'Business' goes daily

A new, daily business page is launched in today's issue of The Herald.

The page will concentrate on business in the Northwest suburbs but will include topical news of state and national interest. Formerly the page was published on Wednesdays only.

A daily feature of the page will be a lively cartoon, "Big Business," which pokes at the foibles of those of us in the business world. Featured on Tuesday through Saturday will be the Dow Jones report of activities in the previous day's stock market.

Each Monday, there will be "People in business," a roundup of job promotions and transfers

affecting residents of the Northwest suburbs.

Three or more days a week staff writer Lea Tonkin will present a feature or in-depth report on business in the area. She'll also edit a regular column of briefs on business.

And each Monday, Wednesday and Friday Phoenix businessman/writer Robert S. Rosefsky will present his nationally syndicated column on money management, "Speaking dollar-wise." A frequent guest on talk shows such as The Tonight Show, Dinah and the Mike Douglas Show, Rosefsky is a personal finance adviser on the ABC show AM America.

Civic leaders invited to join historical unit

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has sent letters to 10 community leaders asking them to serve with him on Palatine Historical Society's museum development committee.

Jones was appointed chairman of the committee last month. The committee has been organized to raise $44,000 to renovate and restore the proposed museum at 225 E. Palatine Rd. The 104-year-old house was purchased with funds donated by the Palatine Library Board, which will serve as co-owner of the building along with the Palatine Park District, which will maintain the building.

Jones said he has contacted bank presidents, school officials and officials of the Chamber of Commerce in his effort to organize the fund-raising committee. Letters to the officials were mailed last week and Jones said he is waiting to hear from those contacted.

"We will try to raise as much of the money as possible by July 4," Jones said. "The impetus will be good between now and then."

THE COMMITTEE will concentrate on contacting businesses and corporations to get large donations rather than seeking out individuals for small amounts, he said.

"We need to go to people who can afford to give us big amounts," Jones said. "It will basically be corporations who can say 'we donated furnishings for the living room,'" he added.

Jones said he also plans to solicit the aid of people with creative ideas for fund-raising events. He said the committee probably will have some type of fund-raising activity during the July 4th Bicentennial festivities.

The deed for the building will be presented to the historical society from the library board July 4 during the village's Bicentennial celebration.

Police leave 'adult' store alone

By JOE SWICKARD

The topless clerk at the adult bookstore leaned across the counter and stroked his beard.

"We've been here about three months, and we haven't had any trouble at all," the clerk said.

Although it was the middle of the afternoon of a working day, the front and rear parking lots of the Rand Road Books, 2239 Rand Rd., Palatine Township, were filled with cars.

INSIDE, CUSTOMERS in business suits and construction clothes browsed among the magazines — $10 now reduced to $6 — or fed quarters into the slots of the individual movie screening booths.

The only heat felt at the store was from the temperature nudging the 90-degree mark. The store has not been raided, materials haven't been seized, nor have clerks been arrested.

The store's sister operation, The King and Queen Adult Book Store in Lake County, had not been so lucky.

That store closed last month as part of a plea bargaining deal with Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian. A sign on the closed store now directs customers to Rand Road Books.

The King and Queen shut its doors in exchange for the dropping of obscenity charges against two employees stemming from a raid in which the men were arrested for selling a Lake County Sheriff's deputy an allegedly obscene magazine.

THE CLERK AT THE Rand Road store declined to give his name, but he said during his three years of working at adult bookstores he has not been arrested.

"But if you're in the business long enough, you're bound to get busted sooner or later," he said, adding that most cases drag out only to have the charges later dropped or reduced.

"It's a hassle, but it doesn't really come to much unless you want to get a job where they are going to check for arrest records," the clerk said.

The shop offers such titles as "Real Sex" and others more graphic. The counter displays items advertised as "novelties," "life-like" inflatable woman dolls and things he lumped together as "paraphernalia."

THE SIGN AT THE counter announces a $1 admission charge that is refundable with a purchase.

"We don't want to become a library. We don't want the guys coming to spend their lunch hour browsing and then not buying anything," the clerk said.

The sign also limits admission to persons 21 or older.

"I think the state law says 18, but with all the fake ID's, we don't want to take any chances. That's what they'll really get you for," he said. Most of the customers are men, he said, "carpenters, construction workers, but we also get the businessmen, too."

THE BUSINESS is changing, he said, even in the three years he has been in it.

"It's different now. People used to come in and turn sideways or they wouldn't even wait for a bag. They'd run right out the door. It's more open now," he said.

The openness has extended to women customers, too, he said.

"We get about a dozen or so a week," the clerk said.

Even with all the possible combinations offered in his wares, the clerk admitted, "After all, you see one, you've seen 'em all."

Harwig to ask for study panel on plastic pipe

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig tonight will ask the village board to appoint a special three-member committee of experts from the construction field to study and recommend whether plastic plumbing should be allowed in the village.

Harwig said he already has the names of a builder, an architect and a plumber to submit to either the board or Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. The three would serve as an independent committee to study and analyze the merits of plastic plumbing so the board can determine whether village codes should be amended to permit the use of plastic plumbing.

The proposal will be presented to the board at a special committee-of-the-whole meeting following the regular board meeting, which is set for 9 p.m. at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St.

FORMATION OF the committee was prompted by a recent incident in which the village plumbing inspector was given an official reprimand for allowing the installation of plastic plumbing in four houses now under construction in violation of the village code.

Harwig said no action will be taken about the houses until the committee makes its report.

"We need some guidelines before we can take any action," Harwig said, "and this committee can serve independently so if the board does decide to change the code, there will be no inferences that they were pressured to do it."

Harwig said no village officials will be on the committee and he will only provide information to the group. He said he would like a recommendation from the panel as soon as possible.

In addition to the board meeting and the committee-of-the-whole meeting, two committee meetings are scheduled for 7 and 8 p.m.

Railroad to repair 3 village crossings

The railroad crossings at Brockway Street, Plum Grove Road and Palatine Road in Palatine will be repaired by Chicago and North Western Ry. work crews during July and August.

Officials of the railroad have notified Palatine officials that a complete rebuilding of the Brockway Street crossing will be done. Removal of the wearing surface and repair of the crossings are planned at the other two locations.

4 arrested after melee with police

by DAVE IBATA

A noisy party in northeast Mount Prospect turned into a violent melee between 40 patrolmen and 150 youths late Saturday.

Three patrolmen suffered minor injuries in the fracas, which reportedly broke out when police tried to arrest a 35-year-old woman who was chaperoning a graduation party at 1004 Hemlock Ln., Mount Prospect.

Police arrested the woman, Cecelia Factor, who reportedly shouted obscenities and fought with police when they entered her house at 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

POLICE ALSO arrested Mrs. Factor's 16-year-old son, who allegedly punched a patrolman; Avery Harford, 19, of 119 S. Phelps, Arlington Heights; and a 15-year-old Mount Prospect girl.

Harford allegedly scuffled with police, and the juvenile girl reportedly urged other youths to throw beer cans and bottles at patrolmen.

Two Mount Prospect patrolmen initially responded to complaints of a youth disturbance outside the Factor home.

When police arrived, they reportedly found a crowd of 150 high school and college-age youths spilling out of an open garage and onto the front yard of the Factor house. Police said they observed underage drinking at the scene.

POLICE SAID they entered the Factor home and confronted Mrs. Factor. When told of neighbors' complaints and the underage drinking, Mrs. Factor shouted obscenities at patrolmen, police said.

When asked to disperse the youths, Mrs. Factor refused and began scuffling with police, police said. After a third warning, patrolmen said they arrested Mrs. Factor.

Police said as the patrolmen escorted Mrs. Factor out through the garage, she reportedly began crying out to the youths. Several youths jumped the policemen, while Mrs. Factor allegedly scratched and kicked, police said.

Police also said a third patrolman who had arrived when the fracas started also was overpowered. The three patrolmen were thrown from the garage, police said.

POLICE THEN radioed for help, and units from Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Wheeling, Arlington Heights, the Cook County Sheriff's police and forest preserve rangers responded.

Mrs. Factor, Harford and the two juveniles were apprehended and transported by a Des Plaines squad to the Mount Prospect lockup. Ten plainclothes and 30 uniformed police then dispersed the crowd.

Mrs. Factor was charged with aggravated battery, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Bond was set at $10,000. She was still being held Sunday in the Mount Prospect lockup in lieu of bond.

Harford was charged with disorderly conduct and released on a $25 misdemeanor bond.

MRS. FACTOR'S son was released to the custody of his father, Hyman Factor; the juvenile girl was released to her parents.

Three patrolmen were treated for bruises and scratches at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. A new Mount Prospect squad car reportedly was damaged by a brick during the melee.

Chief Ralph Doney of the Mount Prospect police said trouble with rowdy youths in the northeast section of the village "is an ongoing thing."

Doney said police have received complaints of youth disturbances in the area several times this year. The chief said he will assign extra police patrols in a crackdown on teen trouble and will ask the village board to approve overtime pay for the patrols.

Doney said a group of more than 100 youths between the ages of 15 and 21 have clumped together in northeast Mount Prospect and have demanded an end to police "harassment."

Doney said the youths apparently have their parents' support in their opposition to police.

SITTING PRETTY. Kindergarteners at Sunset Park School in Mount Prospect put on their own fashion show last week to conclude the year's activities. Students in Gloria Heilman's class modeled the latest in hats, the students' own creations, while proud mommies snapped photographs of the tykes recording the passage of their first year of many years in school.

Faculty, Harper reach accord in salary talks

A tentative contract settlement that would give all teachers a $1,375 raise for the 1976-77 school year has been reached between the Harper College faculty and board.

Faculty negotiators and board attorneys agreed to the pact Friday in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen. Both sides will return to court today to present the reactions of board members and faculty to the contract settlements.

The board met in closed executive session Saturday to discuss the terms of the contract. Board Pres. Shirley Munson said Sunday, "I'm personally satisfied, but I can't speak for the rest of the board."

Board negotiator Robert Rausch said, "I prefer not to make any statements while we are still negotiating. We are right in the middle of it now."

FACULTY NEGOTIATOR Michael Bartos said, "I have no doubt the faculty will approve the contract." He said faculty members will vote on the pact and present the results to the board no later than June 22. The board is expected to vote on the contract at its June 23 meeting.

Bartos said the "most important part of the contract is that the board has agreed to recognize us for negotiations next year." Board recognition of the faculty expired June 1.

Not getting enough data: Wattenberg

Trustee raps village attorney

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg said Mount Prospect Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann does not provide trustees with enough information about the village's legal status.

Wattenberg, chairman of the village judiciary committee, said Zimmermann leaves questions unanswered in his monthly status reports. Wattenberg would like to know where the village stands in several pending lawsuits.

The matter will be discussed today at the judiciary committee meeting at 8 p.m. in village hall, 100 S. Emerson St.

"More 'sunshine' must be spread on litigation involving the village," Wattenberg said. "I want light shed on a subject I think is public. I want to know the number of lawsuits the village is involved in and the merits of each case... whether the nature of the lawsuits sets a pattern. We have a duty to make the information available to interested people."

WATTENBERG SAID Zimmer-

mann's reports are merely "summaries, captions of each case" and he would prefer to see specifics. "He's just giving me an inventory," Wattenberg said. "It's an insult to my intelligence."

The trustee cited three cases summarized in Zimmermann's May report to clarify his position. One lawsuit was filed by the village against Pioneer Trust and Savings Bank in Chicago concerning the collection of unpaid sewer charges at the Alpine Apartments, 1821 Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. Wattenberg contended the synopsis states only why the lawsuit was filed and the fact it will come to trial late in 1978.

"What is the status of negotiations? How much are we demanding? Is it $10 or thousands of dollars in unpaid charges? How much have we paid in legal fees thus far? What is the nature of the controversy? Why won't it come to trial until 1978?" Wattenberg asked.

Another lawsuit was filed against the village by Harry J. Ghera, 419 S.

Emerson St., Mount Prospect, involving a fall Ghera took on a sidewalk in the village. "All it (the summary) tells me is that it concerns a sidewalk fall and that there is a question as to whether it was on railroad property or a public right of way," Wattenberg said. "I don't know when or where the accident happened."

A THIRD CASE is an ongoing one involving the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the matter of Lake Michigan water allocations, Wattenberg said. "How much have we spent on legal fees?" he asked.

Although Wattenberg admits he has not confronted Zimmermann directly with these questions, he said he intends to find out how many persons are interested in village litigation.

"No one has talked about it. Maybe there is no interest in it," he said. "But I am interested."

Zimmermann said Wattenberg has never discussed the alleged lack of information with him. "Whatever questions Trustee Wattenberg has, I'm not aware of," Zimmermann said. "I don't think I have the right to discuss it (village litigation) and I can't divulge any information I don't have the right to discuss."

He said he only has a "right" to discuss pending lawsuits with the village board in executive session. "I have ethical responsibilities as a lawyer that I have to adhere to," Zimmermann added.

OTHER ITEMS ON tonight's judiciary committee meeting agenda include:

• Review of a recreational vehicle report from a citizens' advisory committee regarding parking campers and trailers in residential driveways.

• The status of the village's acquisition of Citizens Utilities and the quality of an inexpensive investigation into the water company's operations.

• A proposed ethics ordinance, applicable to elected officials and village employees, requiring disclosure of property ownership, gifts given and received, debts and business interests.

Keane an Air Force grad

Mount Prospect can be very proud of one of its sons, who was an outstanding member of the 1976 US Air Force Academy graduation class.

Michael Keane, 104 N. Waverly, was graduated June 2 second in his class of 920 cadets. He was commissioned a second lieutenant. Mike was on the superintendent's (dean's) list for eight consecutive semesters and received a bachelor of science degree in astronautical engineering.

In addition, Keane was presented with an award as the Outstanding Cadet in Astronautical Engineering by Maj. Gen. Cody of the Strategic Air Command. He also received a certificate of merit for his qualities of leadership while he held the position of 40th Squadron Commander and was selected by the Air Force Academy to represent the State of Colorado as a candidate for Rhodes Scholarship.

Keane has received a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship to Princeton University, where he will start study in the fall toward a master's degree in aerospace and mechanical science.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was the commencement speaker and presented diplomas to the distinguished graduates, equivalent to Magna Cum Laude, including Keane.

Following the ceremonies, the Air Force graduates traditionally toss their hats into the air and a mad scramble for them ensues. However, Michael and the boy who was first in the class were asked by the vice president if he could have their hats to take to his home in New York, which he did.

Michael Keane has been a resident of Mount Prospect since 1961. He graduated from St. Raymond School and Prospect High School. He played basketball for four years at Prospect High.

BIG CONGRATULATIONS to Alvin and Malinda Oehlerking of 113 S. Elm St., who recently celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

DEAN ENNES, 1471 Blackhawk Dr., recently was honored as "Outstanding Student Leader" at Carthage College in a vote by both students and faculty. He was graduated Cum Laude from the school last month and received a bachelor's degree in speech and communications and Latin American studies.

Ennes intends to continue his education toward a master's degree in International Relations.

THE HERSEY High School Band recently received two first-place honors in parade competition at the annual Harvard Milk Festival in Harvard, Ill.

O'Donnell nominee for deputy clerk post

Kevin O'Donnell of Des Plaines has been recommended to succeed Mount Prospect Deputy Clerk Marie T. Hard, who said she will retire June 30.

Village Clerk Donald W. Goodman last week appointed O'Donnell, subject to the village board's consent. The appointment is effective July 1. The board is expected to approve O'Donnell's appointment Tuesday at its 8 p.m. meeting in the public safety building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Meanwhile, O'Donnell, 25, will work with Mrs. Hard the remainder of June to learn the job. He was one of 35 applicants interviewed and screened for the position, which has an annual salary of $13,000.

O'Donnell, who grew up in the Northwest suburban area, received a bachelor's degree from DePaul University and a master's degree in public administration from Ball State University in 1973. He has three years of municipal experience working with the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference and is an administrative assistant in Northfield.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said of O'Donnell, "He comes to us well recommended by both the village manager of Northfield and the executive secretary of the DuPage Mayors and Managers Conference."

Faculty, Harper reach accord

if the board will negotiate a 1977-78 contract with the teachers' newly formed union, the American Federation of Teachers, it does agree to recognize the Harper College Faculty Council, Bartos said. He said the two are interchangeable.

BARTOS SAID teachers were given the option of accepting either a straight $1,375 increase or a $1,275 raise and $100 bonus. Teachers will vote their preference before June 22, he said.

After several months of negotiations the board called an end to contract talks April 1, when no settlement had been reached. The board then voted teachers a $1,275 raise, and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Cohen ordered the board to negotiate and a series of appeals by the board followed. After losing an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court, representatives of the board and faculty returned to Cohen's courtroom Friday.

MOUNT PROSPECT RESIDENTS unite. This is the route along which 15,000 Mount Prospect residents are expected to join hands July 4 in recognition of the nation's Bicentennial.

Hands-across-village expected to draw 15,000

About 15,000 Mount Prospect residents are expected to join hands at noon July 4, forming a 10-mile north-south human chain through the village in recognition of the nation's Bicentennial.

Hands Across Mount Prospect, through efforts of the village Bicentennial commission, will take place as scheduled despite financial problems which have forced the breakdown of a similarly planned nationwide project.

"Ours is not related to the national project," said coordinating chairman Gerald "Skip" Farley. The closest link to Mount Prospect originally planned in the Hands-Across-the-Nation project was to be Aurora.

LOCAL CHURCHES are being asked to ring their church bells and approximately 3,000 helium balloons will be released for the two-minute linkup.

"It signifies everyone's joining together, despite political and religious differences, in a common cause," Farley said, reflecting on the historical behavior of United States and Mount Prospect citizens.

Highlighting the event will be a hot air balloon which will be used for show as well as for capturing the mood of the village through aerial photographs of the 10-mile chain.

Hands Across Mount Prospect will follow the village's bicycle route and residents living along the path are encouraged to step outside of their homes at noon to participate. Farley said about one-third of the village residents are needed to complete the chain.

"The thrust of the project," Farley said, "is to open the community from south to north. The chain is expected to extend from the Mount Prospect Historical Society on Linneman Road to the south to Willow Road on the north.
